Can't Worry Wall Street
75,000 Acres Burn
Ford Dips into Rubber

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

In pre-fight language, the big fight was "a flop." It did not yield the $1,000,000 expected, so Mr. Tex Rickard, impressario of the squared circle, lost about $200,000 of his own money.

He had guaranteed each fighter a certain sum, cruel government took 25 per cent of the gross receipts, or as much of 25 per cent as it could get. What was left isn't enough.

"FROM evil comes good." Decency will rejoice at Mr. Rickard's announcement that he will stop broadcasting from the ringside. People save their money, listen to descriptions of fights and blood over the radio. Hereafter to enjoy a fight, you must pay your money and SEE blows and blood. That's good news. Those that delight in blood and like seeing other men take blows that they wouldn't take themselves should herd together.

NOTHING worries Wall treet. Plus signs are scattered over the list this morning. General Motors has gone up nearly 10 points since Mr. Raskob decided not to combine politics and automobiles. Big business does not like to be tied up in politics—openly.

"BIG" steel is up, oils and market leaders generally are up. Money, plentiful, made it hard for leaders to keep up to 5½ per cent. Looks like the beginning of another bull market in spite of federal reserve efforts to discourage speculation.

A GREAT fire raging over farms in the Northwest burns 75,000 acres of wheat and pasturage. Homes and ranches are burned with crops, farmers fighting it in vain.

Would it be possible to equip a fleet of airplanes with chemical apparatus for extinguishing fire, to deal with a disaster of this kind?

Aircraft manufacturers and those that manufacture chemical fire extinguishers might answer that question.

HENRY FORD starts work on 6,000,000 acres for rubber planting in Brazil. A good deal of land; it ought to produce a lot of rubber.

Two ships with equipment, machinists, experts and mechanics have been sent to get production started.

Ford's friend, Firestone, is making a big rubber experiment in Africa. Ford prefers South America. These two men might easily end the British rubber monopoly.

GEORGE D. SMITH, once New York's most famous dealer in old books, died, and his firm is bankrupt. Smith did not read the beautiful volumes that passed through his hands. He knew them by instinct; could instantly identify their importance, value and rarity.

THIS writer, in New York's biggest book store, once asked for Schopenhauer's "Studies in Pessimism," to get the exact reference to that "undersized, narrow shouldered, wide-hipped" creature woman, whom Schopenhauer disliked.

Learned gentlemen in the book store could not find the book, were sure they didn't have it. "But wait a moment; I'll give one chance." They called a colored youth, 18 years old. "Certainly," said he; "you will find it up in the gallery, second shelf." Similarly he could locate any one of thousands of books in that store. Had he read? "No, I didn't read any of the books, but I know them all."

VOLTAIRE apologized for the small size of his library, only 6,000 volumes, the margins of pages covered with notes in his fine handwriting. Catherine of Russia bought them all when he died.

HOME BURGLARIZED

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Paris Residence Entered During Her Absence

Paris, July 28—The home of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, rich American woman at No. 10 Rue Lorenz, was burglarized during her absence, according to a report made to the police today.

There were six servants sleeping in the Vanderbilt home at the time of the robbery, which took place at night. They told the police that they heard no noise and knew nothing of the theft until they awoke.

The servants refuse to divulge the value of the stolen articles in reported or to reveal the whereabouts of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

STRIKE PARADE CALLED OFF IN NEW BEDFORD

Tension in Massachusetts City Dispelled; Troops, Police Mobilized

HAD DEFIED MAYOR

Official Opposed to Radical Element in Textile Workers' Lines

New Bedford, Mass., July 28—The atmosphere of tension which had gripped the city because textile strikers and their sympathizers, led by the so-called radical wing, had decided to defy Mayor Charles H. Ashley and stage a parade, was dispelled today when officers of the textile mills committee decided to call off the proposed demonstration.

At the time the abandonment of the parade was announced it was raining and 400 police from this and surrounding cities had been mobilized together with two companies of coast artillery.

Two companies of coast artillery, enroute from Camp Devens, were held and mobilized at the state armory for instant action. One hundred and fifty men in all were held there.

On Strike 15 Weeks

The police force was made up of 275 local police officers and 140 outside officers. Thirty Fairhaven officers were held in reserve across the river in case their service were required.

For 15 weeks the 27,000 cotton mill operatives from 50 miles have been on strike against a ten per cent wage reduction.

The parade was suggested by the so-called radical wing of the strikers, which Mayor Ashley has opposed.

Six men and women arrested last night, at the Kilburn mills, were arraigned in court here today. Of the six, four were non-residents of the city.

LIGHTNING STRIKES S. HIGH ST. HOME

Chimney Partly Wrecked; Thunderstorm Brings Sharp Drop in Temperature

Partial destruction of the chimney at the home of C. L. Van Arsdell, 279 South High st., when it was struck by lightning, was the most serious damage reported here in a heavy thunderstorm which deluged the city early last night.

Streets in various sections of the city were flooded for a time following the downpour but sewers carried off the overflow without difficulty

The storm brought results which gave Marion residents a chance of enjoying thorough relief from the heat as the mercury of thermometers fell to unusually low figures today.

From a low mark of 58 degrees for last night the mercury had only climbed to 67 degrees at noon today, which is believed to be one of the lowest points recorded at the noon hour this summer. Before the showers last night, a high of 86 had been reported in the city. Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, local weather observer reported today that 68 of an inch of rain fell during the storm.

Fair weather conditions for the week-end were forecast by weathermen today.

AGED DIRECTORS OF BANK ARE ACQUITTED

Wheland and Ewing Claim They Did Not Sign Alleged False Reports

Findlay, July 28—J. H. Wheland and A. L. Ewing, aged directors of the defunct Arcadia Bank and Savings Co., today stood acquitted by a jury of seven women and five men of any complicity in connection with the failure of the Arcadia bak which caused a loss of approximately $275,000 to the stockholders and depositors.

Wheland is 84 and Ewing is past 67. The two men together with 10 other former directors and officers were indicted by the Hancock county grand jury April 11. The bank closed its doors, Nov. 3, 1927. All were charged with making false reports of the condition of the bank.

Wheland's and Ewing's advanced ages and the fact that the two men claimed they did not sign the alleged false reports of the cashier, Fred P. Conaway, who is among those under indictment, were the chief arguments used by the defense.

FOUR BOATS AND HOUSE ARE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Sandusky, July 28 — Four small boats, together with Worthy Brown's boathouse at Erie Beach, near Lakeside, were destroyed by fire last night, it was learned today. The loss exceeds $35,000, it was said. Three of the boats were owned by the Pelee Island Fishing club. Cause of the fire had not been determined early today.

SEEKS MONEY RECOVERY

St. Clairsville, July 28—Suit for recovery of $12,000 as insurance on his stock in the Webster grocery, destroyed last April in the blaze which cost the lives of two firemen and loss of about $100,000 to the business district here, was filed in common pleas court today by Hal L. Webster, owner of the store.

Women Voters Are Likely to Decide Who Shall Be President, Landrith Says

Chautauqua Lecturer, a Southern Democrat, Gives Views on Political Situation in Interview; Sees Rigid Prohibition Enforcement Regardless of Who Is Elected

Women may turn the tide of the presidential election this year.

That is the belief of Dr. Ira Landrith, noted lecturer, former college president and prohibition enforcement advocate, who lectured at the Marion Chautauqua last night. His views on the political situation were expressed in an interview at Hotel Harding.

"Although the members of the female sex have had little to do with the selection of president in recent years, they will likely have a great part in determining who will head the United States government during the next four years," Dr. Landrith maintains.

"That women will figure prominently in this year's election is based on the fact that there is a moral question connected, although somewhat vaguely, with the coming contest. Women are known to be avowed 'dry' ticket supporters and with the entrance of a 'wet' candidate in the race, the sex will rally in an effort to defeat him."

Doesn't Pick Winner

However, Dr. Landrith, former head of the Ward-Belmont College, of Nashville, Tenn., and a southern Democrat, did not state when interviewed, which of the two candidates he believes will be the next president.

The southerner is an ardent advocate of the enforcement of prohibition and gives optimistic views regarding effectiveness of the Volstead law in the future.

"Regardless of the way the next election swings, either Democratic or Republican, more rigid enforcement of the prohibition law will be noticed. There is no other way out of it. Prohibition is here to stay and will be enforced, either by a 'wet' or 'dry' president.

"What this country needs at the present time is another Andrew Jackson who will really enforce the laws as stated in the Constitution," he said. "A man similar to Jackson will soon take the chair and when that time

REVEAL LOWENSTEIN LOANS TREMENDOUS

Forced by Reverses To Borrow Huge Sums from Banks To Hold Control

Brussels, July 28—Settlement of the estate of the late Capt. Alfred Lowenstein, which is in its initial stage today following the unsealing of the Belgian capitalist's will, is expected to reveal vast personal loans obtained during the seven months preceding his death.

Although Lowenstein was rated at one time as one of the world's richest men, he suffered reverses which compelled him to borrow from banks to maintain his hold upon enterprises which he had originated or taken over from others.

These loans may aggregate more than $50,000,000, although probably no one man knows the exact amount as yet.

Lowenstein had a "fluctuating fortune." Its size increased or decreased in accordance with the market value of the shares of companies in which he was interested. It has been estimated at approximately $25,000,000, but may prove more owing to the fact that a banking syndicate, headed by J. Henry Schroeder and Co. of New York and London, has come to the rescue of some of the shares which might have been affected by the sale of unissued stock.

GOV. SMITH TO TAKE STUMP IN HIS CAMPAIGN

Democratic Nominee Abandons Original Plan To Limit Speeches

URGED BY RITCHIE

Friends Tell Candidate His Personality May Play Important Part

New York, July 28—Al Smith today had abandoned his original plan of limiting his active campaign for the presidency to a dozen or 15 radio speeches in the chief cities of the country.

As a result of his conference here with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, Smith has decided to follow the advice of the Maryland executive as well as numerous other Democratic leaders and make a real stump speaking tour from coast to coast, according to his close friends.

The governor is understood to have promised Ritchie that he will make at least one speech in Maryland, and, if time permits, he will campaign in all of the border states.

Urge Him To Talk

Ever since Smith announced, shortly after his nomination, that he would limit his campaign to a few speeches in what he considers strategic points in the country, several of his most trusted advisers have been telling him that it might be a fatal mistake if he held his campaign down to a few major speeches.

They have bluntly told the governor that his personality may play an important part in the coming campaign, just as they feel it has in his gubernatorial battles in New York, and that the best way to reap results is to mix with the voters of as many states as possible.

The governor's friends have told him that it is a good idea to use the radio in connection with some of his campaign speeches but that it is a most difficult task to broadcast a personality.

Governor Smith long has had a personal regard for Governor Ritchie's political sagacity and is reliably understood to have been deeply impressed by the latter' insistence for a hand-shaking, back-slapping campaign throughout the country.

Real Fight Needed

Prohibition also played an important part in the Smith-Ritchie confab. The governor is understood to have given Ritchie a general outline of what he intends to say about prohibition in the address he will deliver on Aug. 22 at Albany when he is formally notified of the nomination. While Ritchiee would not comment on prohibition except to

He will make the trip north by motor, carrying his party through the giant redwood forests and skirting the Pacific ocean to the Oregon line. EXPECT TO TRY HENRY IN FALL COURT TERM

Plans Made for Hearing in Last of County Farm Robbery Cases

Ralph Henry, who was arrested in Fostoria Thursday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland on a charge of stealing livestock from Marion county farmers, will be held for trial during the September term of the common pleas court, according to Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann.

Henry is claimed to be one of a gang of 11 who staged farm robberies in the county for several months early in 1927. The entire gang was taken into custody about a year ago by Sheriff Deal and assistants. With the exception of Henry, all were convicted and sentenced in common pleas court.

Henry was indicted by the grand jury but jumped his bond before he could be arraigned in common pleas court. He was bound over to the grand jury, following his arrest, by Judge William R. Martin, of municipal court. According to Prosecutor Wiedemann, Henry pleaded "guilty" before Judge Martin and also made a written confession.

Henry will be arraigned before Judge Scofield in common pleas court soon, according to an opinion expressed today by Prosecutor Wiedemann.

Henry was arrested by Deputy Ireland in a Fostoria factory where he has been working. The indictment charges him with stealing livestock valued at $175 from James Guthery, a Big Island township farmer.

Of the 10 convicted, two went to the Ohio penitentiary, five to the Mansfield reformatory ,two were placed on parole by the court and one received a suspended sentence to the reformatory.

$781,891 ON "BIRD"

Tully-Meroure Play Claimed "Stuff" on Woman's Drama

New York, July 28—Mrs. Grace A. Fendler, playwright of Los Angeles, has $781,891 coming to her—if she can collect it.

Formal approval was expected to be given today in the supreme court to the report filed by Referee Hanls L. Herve, holding that she is entitled to collect this sum from Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, and Richard Wallace Tully, playwright.

Awarding of the $781,891 to Mrs. Fendler follows 16 years of litigation, which began when she filed suit in 1912 claiming that the Morosco-Tully play, "The Bird of Paradise," was a "steal" from her own play, "In Hawaii."

Mrs. Fendler submitted the manuscript of "In Hawaii" to Morosco in 1910. Later Tully wrote "The Bird of Paradise," which was produced by Morosco, who returned Mrs. Fendler's play to her.

PLANS OTHER CHINESE PACTS

Secretary Kellogg Hopes for Abolition of Extra-Territoriality

Washington, July 28 — Secretary Kellogg plans to follow his Chinese policy to its logical conclusion, abolition of extra territoriality.

This was the belief in diplomatic circles here today, and it was felt that the United States had already gone too far to hold back long because of any disinclination of Japan and other foreign powers with interests in the far east, to move with the speed with which Minister MacMurray, at Pekin, has moved toward complete recognition of the awakened China.

Indications of the state department today were that MacMurray may already have begun informal conversations with Foreign Minister Hwang Fu of the Nationalist government, with regard to a treaty of commerce, to be followed closely by negotiations of other treaties of a secondary nature.

Ready To Go Further

The opening wedge looking toward a complete revision of all treaties, which the Nationalists declared recently would not be renewed on their expiration, and the existence of which has been a thorn in the side of the new China, was the sudden coup of Kellogg in announcing his readiness to negotiate a new tariff treaty, and the actual signing of the treaty before the echo of the telegraph instruments transmitting the note, had died away.

With all secondary treaties out of the way, it was believed here that the United States would be read, to take up the question of abrogation of the extra-territoriality treaty, the culmination of the American policy to restore China her full sovereignty.

The background for the new treaty and the negotiations to follow for others

MRS. YALE [illegible] GIVEN DECISION BY GOVERNOR

Michigan Executive Refuses To Order Extradition of Former Marion Woman

HEARING HELD

No Basis Found for Child Stealing Charge, Attorney General Declares

Efforts of Paul Hoch, Marion automobile dealer, to have his former wife, the present Mrs. Walter S. Yale, of Detroit, returned to Marion to answer charges of child stealing, have come to a sudden halt.

The attempt to bring Mrs. Yale, and her husband as well, back to Marion, was interfered with when Gov. Fred W. Green of Michigan refused to grant extradition of the pair. Application for extradition was presented to the Michigan governor last Wednesday. The hearing on the application was held the following day.

Action of the Michigan governor was revealed here today when James Doak, Marion county sheriff, returned from Lansing after failing to obtain extradition of the Yales.

Hoch charged his former wife with taking their child, Donald Jack Hoch, aged four, from his home here.

In the opinion of Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney general of Michigan, prepared for Governor Green following the hearing, he held that there was no basis for complaint on the part of Paul Hoch, because of an agreement between him and his former wife, and recommended that the application for extradition be denied. The opinion was concurred in by Governor Green.

The agreement referred to, according to testimony and evidence presented by Mrs. Yale at the hearing, was entered into with Hoch on Oct. 10, 1927, that the agreement Mrs. Yale was to have custody of the child from June 15 until Sept. 1 during the year 1928 and George Bauer, 67, received a possible skull fracture when struck by an auto at a street intersection and Mrs. Susan Tanner, 56, suffered four fractured ribs and a possible shoulder fracture when her auto was struck by another machine.

Three inches of rain fell within an hour and at a late hour Friday the precipitation totaled 3.83 inches—said to be the heaviest rainfall here in several years, perhaps in Cleveland's history.

NORWAY IS PUSHING SEARCH FOR FLIER

Offers Bounty To Spur on Sealers; Confident Explorer Is Alive

London, July 28—Still confident that Capt. Roald Amundsen, noted Arctic explorer, will be found alive, the Norwegian government took steps to insure a continued search for him.

Premier Nowimckel offered a bounty of about $1,000 to sealers frequenting the seas between Norway and Spitzbergen to spur them in their search, according to a dispatch from Oslo.

Amundsen has not been heard from since leaving Tromsoe, Norway, on June 18 with five companions in a French seaplane to search for survivors of the Italia tragedy.

Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the ill-fated pjolar expedition, and six other survivors are now being taken through Sweden in a special train. There have been no demonstrations at any of the stations where the train stopped.

Capt. Albert Mariano, the eighth survivor, whose right foot was frost-bitten and then amputated, remained behind.

Marion Paint Co. Explains Advantages of Work in Warm Weather Season

GET BEST SERVICE

Weather Situation Given as Especially Strong Argument To Prove Point

There is a prevalent belief that spring and fall are the correct times to paint—a belief that exists without rhyme or reason. In truth, not only is support for this theory wanting but it is an established fact that midsummer has certain definite advantages over the preceding and ensuing months as the time for painting. This information comes from the management of the Marion Paint Co., 169 East Center st.

First of all, the current opinion which induces people to demand painting service during these particular months, plus the fact that the chosen time coincides with the period when new construction is most apt to require paint, make it necessary to crowd a full year's work into a comparatively short space.

Keep Painters Busy

The good painter is rushed from one job to another, unable to give to any one the time which he otherwise might. In addition to the demand which can't be met he has two fatal results. One is the acceptance of a man who does not know his job but secures employment because he is the best to be had. The other is failure to paint with a resulting deterioration which costs home owners thousands of dollars every year.

Another point of importance from the dollars and cents standpoint is this—the seasonal character of the trade necessitates a charge sufficient to tide the painter over his period of unemployment. If his price is high it is simply that the consumer is paying for his own short-sighted policy. Painting in midsummer therefore offers a very definite economic advantage.

If weather conditions are considered, there is no time more favorable. A dry atmosphere is one of the first requisites for obtaining a good job. Spring and fall weather are decidedly more moist. Again, summer weather is more dependable and the work, therefore, less liable to interruption.

Finally, midsummer is nearly always a more convenient time for the home owner and the household. For inferior painting particularly is this true. Spring and fall are all too busy without having their list of activities unnecessarily increased.

If you want a better job at a more convenient time and at smaller cost, try painting outside and in, during summer months.

Louisville, Ky., July 28—One of the largest transactions ever entered into by a life insurance company in this country was made known today by the Intersouthern Life Insurance Co. and S. F. Arn, chairman of the pension committee of the Louisville & Nashville railroad.

Through the efforts of the veterans' club of the railroad a group insurance pension plan has been created, and by December 15,000 L. & N. employees will have made application for pensions under this plan, which will be in addition to pensions already provided for the railroad company.

BUSINESS REGISTERS UP TO EXPECTATIONS

Sound Economic Position of Country Shown in Half Year, Says Wall st. Writer

"With the first half of the year ended, it is apparent that it measured up fairly close with expectations of conservative observers," A. T. Miller writes in an article on business conditions appearing in the Magazine of Wall Street.

"That is to say, there were few if any indications of business of boom proportions; on the other hand, the slower activitiy marking the greater part of 927 failed to develop in 1928 into a real depression.

"It is true, of course, that 1926 marked the high-water mark for business volume and profit and that we have not, for the most part, enjoyed such conditions in the past 18 months. Yet, instancing the sound economic position of the country new records for volume of production and sales have been made, in some respects, showing that there is still sufficient impetus behind the forward movement in business which started in 1922. On the other hand, there has continued to be a steady deterioration in some industries whose fundamental position, evidently, is still unsound.

Competition Keener

"From the larger viewpoint, perhaps the most conspicuous phase is the comparatively large turnover of business accompanied by a small percentage of profit. This would seem to indicate that competition is not letting up but, rather, is increasing in intensity. Practically all industries and the majority of corporations reflect this condition but the brunt seems to fall most heavily on the smaller concerns. Records of failures during the past six months, for example, as reported by Dun's shows an increase to 1,947 against 1,833 for the same period of 1927 and 1,708 for 1926. At the same time the average liability per failure was $10,233, the smallest figure since 1919; further proof that the smaller firms are encountering growing odds.

Trend of Basic Industries

"Of the great manufacturing and building industries, steel, automobile and building itself have given an exceedingly good account of themselves from the viewpoint of rate of activity, total production and labor employed. For the six months, steel ingot production went to a new record of 24,792,853 tons against 23,807,387 tons in the same period of last year. While the steel industry has continued a good pace, not a great deal of success has attended efforts to increase prices or even to hold them to a stable basis. As reported by the Iron Trade Review, average price for steel products has declined from $36.41 per ton a year ago to $34.93 at the present. This net decline of about $1.50 a ton is partially compensated in earnings by the slight increase in production but leaving net earnings of representative corporations at slightly under the figure for the comparative figure of last year. Economies of operation are likewise playing a part but the question arises as to what the earning power of the industry would be if demand dropped say 10 per cent."

WEEK'S RECORD IS MADE IN CLEARINGS

Bank Figures Here Reach High Total During Six-Day Period

With several large business deals Thursday bringing the day's total up to the $230,213.74, local bank clearings for the week closing Thursday, went far ahead of the figure for last week, according to a summary of clearing association reports.

Clearings for the week reached $870,410 an advance of $224,991 over last week, when the total was reported as $654,419.70.

Aside from the large deals Thursday, which swelled the total for the week to an unusually high figure, bank clearings showed a very satisfactory increase, bankers say, and this in spite of the midsummer season, when buying normally slows up. Aside from last Friday, when the total was $93,827, and Wednesday, when the clearings were $81,176.76, the total receipts each day were well in advance of the $100,000 fixed by bankers as an indication of a satisfactory business.

Details of the deals on Thursday which brought the total bank clearings of the week over the $800,000 mark, were not made known.

FAST SPEED PROGRAM NEXT WEEK

THE horses are coming. Marion's week of the Ohio Short Ship Circuit Racing will open Monday afternoon. A five-day speed program of 20 events bringing in the best horses of the country is scheduled.

The above is the card for Marion sport fans next week at the fair grounds track when one of the best racing meets ever held here will be staged.

Officials of the Marion Driving association are making a strong effort to put Marion back on the map as one of the leading race towns of the state, a reputation held not so many years ago. The best horses from the Grand Circuit are arriving here daily from points all over the country.

Five big days of racing should be well supported by Marion fans so that it will be a success financially. If this is the case the writer has the assurance of local racing officials that two circuit meets will be held in Marion next year with many stake purses being offered. It all depends on how this year's program goes across.

RICKARD CONSIDERS ELIMINATION

THAT man Tex Rickard certainly is a bear for punishment. After losing around $155,000 on his latest venture in the realm of heavyweight kings, he is now laying plans for another elimination tournament.

Rickard is discussing details of a proposed match between Jack Sharkey and Knute Hansen, the Dane. In case Sharkey prefers not to mix up with such strong opposition, it is quite likely that Johnny Risko will be called in from Cleveland.

However, Rickard is using a little bit of care in fixing up his contracts for the next heavyweight championship fight. It is understood that Gene Tunney has signed on the dotted line to fight for Rickard next year on a percentage basis. It looks like no more $500,000 purses for Gene unless some fighter with "it" is brought out.

In many quarters it is hinted that Jack Dempsey may again take a crack at the title. The former champ is still a favorite with the fans who believe he can knock the Marine loose from his title. He is the best bet at the present time on the cauliflower horizon.

"JOHNSON" GETS AVERAGES

JUST the other day the writer received a telephone call from a Marion woman saying that a man had asked to have The Star run the batting averages of the Eagles baseball team. Wondering who would make such a request, the writer learned that it was a man by the name of "Johnson."

Just why "Johnson" is so interested in the Eagles' averages is hard to say. Perhaps it was some member of the team who wished a little publicity. The averages appear elsewhere on the page, the result of 75 minutes of laboring over the scorebook.

YANKEES' LEAD DOWN TO SEVEN

IT may be that the New York Yankees will not have a big walkaway with the American league pennant. The Gotham sluggers are in a slump and their lead has been cut down to seven games.

Cincinnati is back again in the National league fight. While the Cardinals have been losing the Reds have managed to cut their lead down to four games.

RECREATION TEAMS FIGHT HARD

MARION recreation ball teams, nearing the end of the season, are putting up a great fight for the championship of each individual league.

Every strong team is fighting at the top and it looks as though the little world series will find some real games scheduled.

In spite of the fact that fewer teams are entered this season, interest in the games have not taken the slightest drop. Instead, it is running at a higher pitch.

Calvary is the only team that appears certain to win a pennant and they will have a real job to retain the city championship won last year.

RACES TO START MONDA

"LADIES' DAY" WILL FEATURE OPENING OF SHORT SHIP MEETING

Four Events on First Day; Purses To Be $1,900

FREE-FOR-ALL TROT

Features Initial Card; Horses Arriving at Track Today

By KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

ON the eve of another Short Ship Circuit race meet, Marion fans are marking time awaiting the opening Monday of what promises to be the most successful event in the history of the game here.

Months of hard work on the part of officials of the Marion Driving association and especially Frank Foster, the secretary, has resulted in all plans being completed for the start.

The fair grounds track has been polished, scraped and dragged; the stables filled with prime horseflesh; great tents have been erected at the track for the paddock and the final conference of officials has been held.

Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the bugle will sound and the parade will start. From the shelter of the paddock the horses will come parading past the judges stand.

"Ladies' Day" will mark the opening of the race program. Purses totaling $1,900 are expected to attract the best horses stabled here making the opening of the meet an outstanding one.

All events will be run under the Pohlman plan, which calls for overnight entries and gives every class of trotter and pacer an opportunity to win purse awards. For this reason it will be impossible to give the complete program for each day's events ahead of time.

Each day's program will bring out high class horses making it difficult to set the best day of the meeting. Wednesday is expected to draw the largest crowd when practically all stores in Marion will be closed.

Nearby towns and villages will contribute their quota of fans to make the meet a success. Hundreds of followers of race tracks will be here from all over the country according to reservations being made by Frank Foster.

J. M. McGraw, Washington, Pa., will act as presiding judge to the meet, while S. C. Phillips, Xenia, will be the starter. Thomas Galagan, Phillips and H. J. Kohl, Columbus, will act as pacing judges. Kohl will also serve as judge of the paddocks.

FAVORITES EVEN UP IN MANSFIELD RACES

Beckey Beal Best in 15 Class for Pacers on Fifth Day

Mansfield, O., July 28—Favorites broke even in the fifth day's racing here yesterday, taking two of the events of the card and leaving the remaining two to field horses. Becky Beal was the best of the field in the 15 class for pacers, taking the first two heats with ease. Hazel McLyo took the third heat of the event.

Volstead was the favorite in the second event, but after winning the first heat was forced to take a neat trimming from Freddie Capp when he became erratic at the critical moment.

The Grattan family predominated in the free-for-all pace with Prue Grattan, winner of the Kalamazoo Derby last year, registering a win without difficulty. The nightcap went to Capt. Grattan.

Firpo took the final event, nosing out Ida May, the much liked favorite, in both the first and third heats. The time was slow.

CINCINNATI TRAILING CARDS FOUR GAMES

Lead of Yankees Cut Down to Seven Frays by Athletics

New York, July 27—Brooklyn's victory over St. Louis yesterday, giving the Dodgers an even break for the last two series played between the two clubs, brings to light the fact that practically all of the Cardinals' winning edge has been gained at the expense of Pittsburgh, Boston and Philadelphia. The Cards have won 20 games and lost only six against these teams.

The record of the league leaders against Cincinnati, Chicago, New York and Brooklyn, is 31 victories and 20 defeats. The Cards have failed to get an even break against the Reds. The Cubs and the Giants, winning only 22 and losing 23 to these contenders.

Yesterday Dazzy Vance beat St. Louis by a 5 to 2 score. Jim Bottomley contributed his twenty-second home run.

Cincinnati made it four out of five from the Phillies and cut the Cardinals' lead to four games when Pete Donohue held the Quakers to five hits and trimmed them 3 to 1.

Sheriff Blake of the Cubs also yielded only five hits and registered a 2 to 1 win over Boston. The Cubs begin a battle for third place today with the Giants, who made it three out of four from the Pirates by taking the final game of the series, 4 to 2.

The American league race is giving indications of developing into a real scrap. The Athletics cut New York's lead to eight games by trouncing the White Sox, 7 to 4, sweeping the series. Young Ed Walsh, after pitching winning ball for seven innings, was knocked out in the eighth.

Washington beat St. Louis in the ninth, 7 to 4.

A man's behavior, if not his character, can be influenced by plenty of clean shirts.

Lechner Motors Hold Championship of Five Ohio Counties

SHOWING a record of 14 games won and three lost, the Lechner Motors baseball club of Shreve will invade Marion Sunday afternoon seeking the scalps of the Eagles when the two nines clash at Lincoln park.

With "Lefty" Beeler, Wooster college flash, on the mound the Eagles will be having plenty to think about before the final inning rolls around if the past record of the team can be taken at its worth.

In 1927 the Lechner nine won the championship of Wayne, Holmes, Knox, Ashland and Medina counties and are making a strong bid for the title again this season. Outstanding victories scored by the team this year include the Cleveland Tellings, 5 to 2, and a 5 to 0 win over Shelby.

Marion will make no change in the lineup that has been going successfully during the past several weeks. Wilbur Fish, Ohio State mound artist of years gone by, will be back again doing the hurling.

In the preliminary battle at 1 o'clock the Eagles recreation ball team will play Butlers. The main contest starts at 3 o'clock.

Drivers to Parade Horses Past Stands as Feature

A PARADE to the post, adding color and brilliance to the scene, will be a new feature of the Marion Short Ship race meet which opens at the fair ground track Monday afternoon and continuing for five days.

Eliminating much of the confusion that has attended races in the past and aiding fans to identify horses, the Marion Driving association adopted the plan that is being used in all the big racing meets of the country.

A special paddock tent with room for entries in two races will be erected near the grand stand. Horses taking part in the meet will be quartered in it until the race has been completed.

Every 20 minutes, according to officials, a heat will be run with the horses being paraded past the grandstand headed by a red-coated jockey.

Instead of entering the track from many different points as has been the case in the past, all horses will pass through the same gate.

As a trumpet in the grandstand calls out the racers, drivers in their vari-colored coats drive slowly past the stand. They then warm up the horses and within a short time the race is on.

This plan has met with a warm reception in all other cities in which it has been tried. It is expected to be well received in Marion. The plan was taken from the system used in the Kentucky Derby and other great running events.

SHARROCK'S HITTING DROPS, KEEPS LEAD

General Trend of Eagles' Hitting on Increase for 13 Games

With the season a little past the half way mark, the general trend of batting averages of the Marion Eagles baseball club has been upward and featured by the sensational hitting of Joe Conroy.

In his last six games Conroy has been hitting at the rate of .478 bringing his season's percentage up .424. In his first four games, Conroy smacked the apple for an average of .309.

In spite of the fact that his hitting has slumped from .500 to .432, Sailor Sharrock is still leading the heavy wielders of the stick. However, his margin is so small that a bad day Sunday when the Eagles and Lechner Motors of Shreve clash at Lincoln park may set him back in second place. A couple of safe bingles would then place Conroy at the top.

After a big drop below the .300 mark, Manager Francis Bacon has recovered a part of his batting eye. In the last six games he has boosted his average from .286 to .326.

The Eagles manager is in fourth place of the standings, however, due to the slugging of Rizor. The third baseman, who has played six games as substitute for Buckland, has been hitting at the rate of .343.

In spite of the fact that he is in fourth place, Bacon is leading the team in the number of runs scored this season. His average is one a game. Sharrock is next with an average of five-sixth of a run in each fray.

Batting averages for all regulars of the team with the exception of the batteries are as follows:

Player	G	AB	R	H	Pct.
Sharrock	12	44	10	19	.432
Conroy	10	33	5	14	.424
Rizor	6	23	4	7	.343
Bacon	13	43	13	14	.326
Pine	13	52	11	12	.230
Price	13	40	9	12	.245
Rowan	13	51	6	5	.157

GOING HOME

Tom Heeney To Set Sail Within Two Weeks

New York, July 28—In all probability Tom Heeney, unsuccessful candidate for the world's heavyweight title, will set sail within the next two weeks from a Pacific coast port for his first visit in four years to New Zealand, his homeland.

Aside from his desire to return to Gisborne, the little town from which he fared forth as an humble Queensberry wayfarer in 1924, Heeney is concerned with the health of his father, who has been failing for some time. Tom has sent a considerable share of his American ring earnings to his parents but wants to make sure that their remaining days will be spent in comfort.

If he is called "a gentleman of the old school," he believes in a lot of social red tape.

MONTGOMERY WARD MAKES NEW RECORD

Bullish Operations Not as Aggressive on Wall Street Today

U. S. STEEL GAINS

Oils Show More Action, with Leaders Strong; Chrysler Down

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Industrial stocks, firm; railroad stocks, firm; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; cotton, easier; grain, steady; oil, steady; rubber, fairly steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady, and foreign exchange, irregular.

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, July 28—Bullish operations, although not as aggressive as in the previous session, continued to manifest themselves in the stock market today. The mail order and chain store stocks led the forward movement, Montgomery Ward closing 6 3-4 higher at 177 3-4, a new high record price. Sears Roebuck, closing at 118 1-4, up 1 1-8, was fairly strong throughout the day.

There was some profit taking at times, particularly early in the day when some stocks eased off. But, in the final hour, the general list strengthened and the market closed steady—a few issues fractionally easier, but the rank and file showing gains.

United States Steel, which scored a substantial gain yesterday and which has been a leader all week, closed ¼ lower at 144¼. General Motors, another strong stock this week, closed at 193¾, a gain of one point for the day. Other closing prices were: American Can 90⅞, off ⅜; American Smelting 203¾, down ½; General Electric 150⅝, up ⅛; Chrysler 77¼, off 2¼; Hudson Motor 85, up four points; Packard 74¼, up ¼; Sinclair 25¾, up ¼; Cuyahy Packing 73, up 3½; Erie 53⅛, off⅜; Union Pacific 194¾, up ⅝, and St. Paul 36⅛, up ⅛.

The decline in Chrysler was attributed by some traders to the delay in effecting the Chrysler-Dodge merger.

Appreciable gains were made during the day by Radio, American International, Victor Talking, Park and Tilford, Mathieson Alkali, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas and other favorites. There were a few weak spots, particularly in the metals, International Nickel, American Smelting, Abitibi Power and Paper and one of two others showed weakness in the final hour.

Oils were a bit more active than they have been in recent markets and most of the leaders were stronger in the last hour today.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 28—Although corn closed higher yesterday there were no fireworks. In fact there seemed to be a perceptible coolness in the July corn deal. The fever in the whole corn situation seemed to be allayed. It may have run its course. Wheat was weak during most of the session.

At the close wheat was down 1⅛@1⅛c; corn was ⅝@1⅝s higher; oats were ⅝@⅞c lower; rye was ⅝@⅝c lower.

There was a continuance of the covering of short corn in all the futures, but during most of the trading period there appeared to be plenty of corn on tap. As has been repeatedly insisted here, the public interest in the July future is probably exceedingly small.

Short September corn seems to have been heavily covered during the last few days. That future may work higher, or it may not. The ordinary trader should keep out of it on either side.

December corn at the close acted as if the buying power in that future may be exhausted for the time being. To this writer December corn looks like a sale on all bulges. The chief reason why it is able to make recoveries after small breaks may be only sympathetic strength from the July and the September, which move in a sphere of influence from which December corn is entirely excluded. This may be a day when December corn will meet with persistent selling on all hard spots right from the opening. Until the July corn passes out of consideration on the last day of the month, next Tuesday, December corn may show some resistance to downward pressure. After that, however, liquidation may develop, for the prospects concerning the new crop are too glowing to furnish incentive for buying corn now.

There has been big profit taking in the December future, and this, undoubtedly, has weakened its technical condition so that it may be susceptible to selling on a decline from around the present level.

Wheat was a bitter disappointment to bulls yesterday. In spite of a strong Liverpool cable our market never could get above its close of the day before and advance.

Wheat in Trading Position

The market may be in a trading position at the present time and vacillate up and down within a comparatively narrow range. Unless its condition is much weaker than it looked yesterday it ought to hold its own today. But it may be erratic. The cautious trader will abstain from making sales on breaks or purchases on spikes.

No Real Beer in Campaign This Year, Says Lowman

WASHINGTON, July 28—The politicians will have to do their work on water this campaign.

There will be no real beer for the pre-election political "battle of the century," acting Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman declared today.

With the 1928 production of cereal beverage expected to pass the 150,000,000 gallon mark, Lowman has ordered special guards on many of the near-beer plants to make certain that the product contains less than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

Real beer with a kick floods the country periodically and in some sections the flood is said to be almost permanent. Cereal beverage manufacturers first produce real old-fashioned beer and de-alcoholize it before distribution.

Some of the breweries, according to prohibition authorities, occasionally neglect to employ the de-alcoholizing process.

Lowman said that most of the near beer establishments are being checked and that special attention is being given to the plants in New York, where there is usually a plentiful supply of old time "suds."

The situation in Illinois and Pennsylvania, other big beer centers, was characterized as better than that in New York, but Lowman said that all the breweries in these states would be kept under strict surveillance until at least after the election.

America "Fiddling" Away Chances for Achievement, Chautauqua Speaker Says

World Peace, Prohibition and Failure of Women To Vote Discussed by Dr. Landrith as Three Great Problems Indifferently Handled; Lecture Heard by Large Audience

Shades of the days of Nero when he fiddled as Rome burned to the ground, drooped over the Marion County Chautauqua pavilion last night when Dr. Ira Landrith, noted lecturer, brought to a large audience a message dealing with the opportunities lost by American citizens in dealing with the problems confronting the masses of people today.

The people today, Dr. Landrith's subject for his lecture was "Fiddling While the World Burns."

"With three great problems awaiting to be disposed of in a favorable way, Americans today are 'fiddling' away opportunity after opportunity while figuratively, the world burns," he said.

"America 'fiddled' with the chance at world peace, following the close of the World war. Instead of waiting for the parties to enter into the question, we should have settled the question then," Dr. Landrith stated.

Chances Wasted

"Our chances were wasted when a change of party occurred following the war. Since the Democrats suggested a World peace plan with other nations, the Republicans would have nothing to do with it. It would have been the same, however, with the Democrats if the Republicans had suggested the plan."

The second great problem which Dr. Landrith declares has been 'fiddled' with since it has came into prominence, is prohibition.

"The prohibition question, like the World peace plan, should never have entered politics. It should have been enacted and enforced without a party debate. Because it has become partisan, it, isn't any wonder that it has become difficult to enforce.

"The question of giving women the right to vote is the third great 'fiddling' act of the American people. The law giving the women the ballot would have been successful if it had not become partisan.

"America has played politics for 10 years and in that time, we have a law prohibiting intoxicating liquor, but it is not rigidly enforced and we have a law giving women the right to vote, but they don't vote."

Statistical Evidence

Dr. Landrith cited statistics gathered at the last presidential election in explaining the question of the "fiddling" methods used by the women in not voting. In 1924, he stated, less than 40 per cent of the eligible women population cast ballots in the presidential election.

The lecturer, a former college president, gave five examples to the audience in the program, last night, of the prejudices which are hindering the progress of humanity. They are: religious sectarianism, sectionalism principally between the North and the South, partisanism, racialism and the nationality question.

Dr. Landrith's lecture was preceded by a prelude by the Ernest Toy trio. The trio was composed of Ernest Toy, celebrated Australian violinist; Eva Leslie Toy, noted pianist, and Miss Martha Elgin, harpist, a native of Cleveland. A concert was given by the Toy group in the afternoon.

Mrs. Demarchus Brown, noted traveler, lectured to the Friday afternoon audience on the subject, "In the Footsteps of Livingstone." The lecture, dealing with her traveling experiences, was well-received.

A miscellaneous program was presented by the Novelty Four company at the chautauqua pavilion this afternoon. The company, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Small, of Alton, Ill., Miss Frances Sellers, of Scottburg, Ind., and Pietro La Verdi, of Bellefontaine, O., presented a versatile program of music, both instrumental and vocal, a whistling solo, impersonation and ventriloquist numbers and crayon drawings by Mr. La Verdi.

LYDINGS READY TO ASSIGN SPEAKERS

Maryland Senator Has 400 Hired and Volunteer Talkers at Disposal

New York, July 28—Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau, established himself in national headquarters here today to tune up the voice of Democracy for the big shout in the campaign.

He found on his desk ample evidence of a great voice—hundreds of letters from party leaders and lieutenants in all parts of the country seeking assignments. His job will be to co-ordinate the din of babel into a vigorous and smooth, silver-tongued battle cry for Smith and Robinson.

Although the radio will be used more extensively in this campaign than in any previous national effort, Tydings still has a job of bewildering magnitude. Hired and volunteer speakers in the national campaign will number close to 400. Some will speak almost daily on itineraries as carefully prepared as those of a silk stocking salesman, and approximately 50 of the higher-powered voices will operate on the "Big Bertha" basis—a terrific blast when the enemy is at the gates.

Plans for Maryland

Tydings' operations will be one of the principal elements of the campaign and will cost about one-fifth of the $3,000,000 national budget.

Coincident with the opening of the speakers' bureau, came formation of plans for the national campaign in Maryland, Tydings' home state. Following a conference here with Gov. Albert C. Ritchie yesterday, at which the major aspects of the Free state program were discussed, Tydings was ready today to present his detailed campaign plans for Maryland to the national executive committee. Owing to the absence of Chairman John J. Raskob, who is spending the week-end at his summer estate in Maryland, formal approval is not expected before Monday, but Governor Ritchie, who discussed the campaign with Gov. Alfred E. Smith last night, is satisfied that the Tydings plan will be sanctioned by the strategy board.

Must Overcome Obstacles

Both of Maryland's senators, and five of her six members of the house are Democrats. The state is now under a Democratic administration. Aided by a vigorously wet campaign in Baltimore, which casts about half the popular vote of Maryland, the Democrats look forward to the brightest prospects in that state they have encountered in years.

Their great task is to overcome a traditional Republican majority in presidential years. President Coolidge carried the state by 15,000 four years ago, and Harding won it from Cox in 1920 by 56,000. Save for the two Wilson victories there in 1912 and 1916, Maryland has voted Republican majorities for president every year since 1892. In that year Cleveland won the state by 22,000.

Governor Ritchie will have general supervision of the Maryland national campaign, under the national advisory committee here.

Silver Anniversary Buick Models on Display Here Show Many New Features

Distinctive Design and Special Equipment Give Cars High Place in Motor Achievement; Marion Buick Co. Plans Special Showing at Rooms on East Center st.

The silver anniversary Buick is here. Five models arrived at the Marion Buick Co. yesterday. At least eight more will be here next week, according to officials of the company.

As a tribute to Buick's 25 years in the automobile manufacturing field the local dealers are preparing for a special display of the new cars at the show rooms on East Center st. tonight.

The new Buick is different. There is nothing on the road quite like it and the graceful lines of former Buick productions have not been lost in the new creation.

Even more grace and distinction have been added to the appearance of the car.

Different Design

There is nothing about the new car that resembles this year's model. The fenders are of new design. The radiator embodies new features and the headlights and combined tail, stop and backing light have been made more distinctive.

But it is not in these features that Buick has achieved its greatest victory. It is the body lines that show the greatest deviation from the accepted standards of automobile construction.

Where convention body design prescribes an almost straight drop from the top to the running board, Buick has departed from the precedent. The body bulges, or swells, just beneath the windows and the curve thus produced is carried down to the apron in a graceful sweep. The fullness beneath the windows runs completely around the sides and rear of the body.

Sharp Edge Eliminated

The sharp roof edge is eliminated, except in the front which terminates abruptly above the new military visor. The fenders, hood, radiator and even the running board are worked into a harmonious combination with the body lines.

The new Buick's are all master sizes, the former Standard model being discontinued. Buick however, is not building but one size. Wheel bases of the three sizes are 116 inches 121 inches and 129 inches.

The new Buick not only has distinctiveness but it has individuality as well. An examination of the car proves that one of the aims of the designers was to make the car adaptable to the individual.

Feature Retained

The adjustable steering column, introduced last year, has been retained and the front seat in every closed model is now adjustable also. It may be shifted three and one-half inches to accommodate drivers of any stature. This adjustment is accomplished by one hand by means of a small knob just below the edge of the seat cushion and can be made without disturbing either the driver or the passenger. The seat automatically locks at any one of the seven positions within the range of adjustment.

Another new feature of the Buick is the electric windshield wiper with tandem blades. The wiper not only maintains an even speed but cleans the entire windshield, in front of the passenger as well as the driver.

Still another driving compartment improvement is the new Buick instrument panel, with its new grouping of instruments. The panel is provided with two-way illumination and accommodates the 90-mile speedometer—directly in front of the driver—the oil gauge, water temperature gauge, and new hydrostatic gasoline gauge, the most accurate instrument of its sort obtainable.

While the new Buick may not draw the comments of wonder and amazement that its predecessor did 25 years ago it will command far more admiration, even from a motor-wise public.

CORN SUPPLY NOW EQUAL TO DEMAND

Increase in Stock Offered at Reasonable Price Is Week's Market Feature Here

Appearance on the market of green corn in sufficient quantities to supply the demand and at prices within range of the average pocketbook, featured the local markets this week. The first corn appeared early in the week when a grower from the southern part of the state arrived with a load which he had no trouble in disposing of to local dealers, who offered the corn at from 38 to 45 cents a dozen. Home-grown potatoes also made their first appearance on the market this week and dealers were asking 29 cents a peck. Shipped-in varieties continue to supply a large part of the demand, however, at from 25 to 30 cents.

The week saw the close of the pea season. A few on the market the early part of the week sold at 15 cents a pound. As the week advanced, however, the supply became less and the end of the week found the stock practically gone. Both green and yellow wax beans were plentiful all week and the price of 10 cents a pound or two for 15 cents prevailed.

Both black and red raspberries were only fairly plentiful all week and a price of 25 cents for the former and 35 cents for the latter remained unchanged all week. Blackberries quoted at 25 cents early in the week were selling at 20 cents Friday. The supply has been limited all week, although reports of many berries in various parts of the country continue to come to dealers.

Watermelons held fairly steady all week. The prices ranged from 55 to 70 cents and dealers report a ready sale. Cantaloupes were slightly cheaper the latter part of the week. A price of 10 and 15 cents was replaced Friday by prices of five and ten cents. California pears supplied a limited demand all week at 15 cents a pound.

People Won't Make Up Minds on Candidates Now Anyhow, So Will Rogers Tells of Visit with Jackie Coogan

By WILL ROGERS

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers, and its been too hot to read lately, and if I did read there wouldent be anything but "Dry Democrats hold indignation meeting, are about to come out for somebody besides Smith," or "Wet Republicans are about to bolt for Smith and leave Hoover high and dry." Now all that is a lot of Boloney, the election is not held till November and American people never made up their mind that far in advance of anything. People collectively are as bad as individuals, they will do anything in the World to get their name in the paper. So anything that will keep their "Gang" before the public now or any time is all O. K.

Hoover crossed the Continent in the hottest weather just to be told that he was nominated. Smith dident do quite as bad. He tried to find the shady side of Brooklyn Bridge to have the news broke to him. Hoover went by and had a talk with Coolidge where Calvin was fishing for fish without Goiter. Or at least in the early stages of the afficition where they could swallow the hook.

Two Good Candidates

He even went on and hid Dawes Goodby. Said he was sorry he could-ent keep him on the same capacity, but that he would fix up some plan over in Europe that Charley could go over on. Hoover dident go by Topeka to see Charley Curtis. He figured I will see enough of him as it is without purposely hunting him up. I passed through Topeka the other day and they are all mighty strong for Curtis. You know they really have two fine fellows for Vice Presidential Candidates. I hate to see either one of them lose.

And by the way to get away from Politics and all that Hoover, on that train going east that trip was with Jackie Coogan. I hadent seen him in a long time, and had wondered just like I bet a lot of you have, "What kind of a kid is he anyway?" I had known his father on the Vaudeville stage for years, and it was good to renew old acquaintances with them, and I was tickled to death with the Kid. He is a fine manly little fellow. Just about one of the brightest boys you ever talked to his age, which is 13 now.

Likes Flying

He is not at all spoiled, and is all Kid. He is a nut on flying, although he has never been up. His folks wont let him. But he knows more about Aviation than any Aviator I ever talked with. He is simply mad about Planes, Engines, dimensions of wings, records and Horse power of all the different engines. Talk about reading Movie Magazines! All the way across on the train three days, he would be off at every station getting some aviation magazines, and all these wild flying stories. You know I guess they have just about supplanted the old Wild West things. A Horse moves too slow for Kids nowadays. Jackie and his father were going back to play on the stage. His father has learned him the dance routine and they have a great act framed up. He is a fine looking strong healthy little fellow and he will be a success in these Talkies, for he has a good speaking voice. You know we all used to wonder what he would be when he grew up too big for those Baby parts, and everybody had an interest in him, for he was just about the cleverest kid that ever appeared on stage or screen. Well I believe he is coming out fine and will make a very likable manly and clever young man.

Remember Tom Morgan?

So thats that, and say, speaking of people that amount to something, did you remember reading a few weeks ago about the death down in Rogers, Ark., of Tom Morgan? Maybe that dident mean nothing to you and if you are kinder an old timer and read a good deal why maybe it did mean something to you. Something is always yapping about being a Humorist. Well this man was a humorist. One of the best ones in America. I venture to say he has written stuff that has made more people laugh than any man in America. He contributed loads of stuff for years to Puck and Judge. Well he lived in the Town where my wife lived, and had always been a friend of their family and she had always been especially fond of him. I first met him many years ago on my pilgrimages there to see her. He was an old fellow then, but he had in the early days been on the stage with the old Repetoire shows, and kept up on show business.

Well, I was just breaking in it, and I believe he really helped me out with my wife, for when he would see some little mention in the Theatrical papers about me, (and it would be mighty little, too) why he would send or take them up to Betty. He was kinder my booster. I had a good deal of outside opposition from some local and semi-local talent, and needed some aid, that was constantly on the ground. He was a queer character. He wouldn't leave there. We used to try and get him to come east and visit us, or to California, but he stayed right there, wrote all his stuff just from what he read and his local surroundings. But it was always original, it was nobody's idea. An old Bachelor, lived to himself. If he had gotten out and mixed with people and had a chance to see all that was going on with his queer turn of describing things, he would have raised quite a rumpus as a writer. But he dident want to, and I don't much blame him. He had a lot of great friends among writers that he had never met, but who liked and admired his stuff.

Satisfaction Is Success

We will miss his letters, for news and briefness and humor they couldn't be beat. He was 65 at death. He left his home and some fifteen thousand dollars. He had no near relatives so his will distributed it around to people who had befriended him. He died as I think he would have liked to. He saw all he wanted to see. He did what he wanted to do. He had his life, he had his laugh, he was satisfied, and when you are satisfied you are successful. For that's all there is to success is satisfaction. Now you kids all know Jackie Coogan. But you old time readers will always remember the name Tom P. Morgan. We've lost a Humorist.

My Father's Business

LUKE 2, 49

A SERMONETTE

By REV. KARL W. PATOW
Pastor of Prospect Street M. E. Church

A sample of how much can be said in a few words we have in the statement of Jesus: "Know ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"

Three thoughts are prominent in that brief sentence.

1. God is a Father. This was a new revelation of God that Jesus gave to man. With pagan people the idea of God is vague, and crude, often absurd. Their Gods are ignorant, stupid, unclean and cruel. Therefore, to them it is often surprising to learn of a God who is good, compassionate, and loving. In the O. T. age there were devout souls who deeply and sincerely reverenced God. They adored him, they worshiped him, they trusted him, but none presented him, and knew him as Jesus did, as Father. Jesus always speaks of God, and always knew God as "Father." As a Father, in the highest and best sense the word suggests:

He loved as no other father.
He is wise as no other father.
He is rich as no other father.
He is true and faithful as no other father.

2. The Father has a Business, to be transacted in this world. He has created a universe and inhabited the same with multitudes of living creatures. It is his business to provide for his creatures. He must feed them, and he does.

The crown of his creation is man whom he made in his own image. And to him one man is of more value than the whole world. But man fell from his high estate into sin and shame, and is perishing therein. God's supreme business is to restore men, and to redeem men. To this end he sent his Son. "He came to call sinners to repentance." "He came to seek and save the lost." In this business he engages men as co-workers. To his end he has established and maintained the church. The Kingdom of God, we know, is broader than the church of Christ, but for the present age we are persuaded that the visible church, as interpreting God to man, and as leading man to God, stands alone.

3. The Child's first concern should be the Father's business. However, this is not true of many people. Observing some people one would judge from their actions that they are not children at all. How much interest do some people have in the Kingdom of God? How much are they concerned about the church? How much love do they have for the Father and his business? How much of time, energy, thought and how much of their means to they give to promote that business? Truly, many act like total strangers. They have no sense of obligation, no interest, no concern for the Father's business, and thereby they indicate that they are not the children of of God.

Jesus was, with heart and mind, devoted to the Father and his business. He could say of himself at all times: "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me." "Father not my will, but thy will be done." And unto man he says: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God."

New York Central Seeks Routes Preliminary To Entering Aviation Field

Rail-Air Travel Line of Pennsylvania Railroad Proves Threat That Spurs Other Company into Action

New York, July 28—The New York Central railroad is planning to enter the air travel field and was reported today to be negotiating for preliminary air routes in the middle west.

Another big trunk line, the Pennsylvania system, is already definitely in the field, having several months ago joined the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., of which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is head of the air committee. The T. A. T. is working out plans to operate a combination rail and air service from New York to Los Angeles, the distance to be traversed in 48 hours, or one-half the time it now requires by rail. This main line service to the Pacific coast will not be opened until next spring.

A Chicago-Twin Cities route, however, will be in operation next month. Through tickets are to go on sale soon, according to the T. A. T. plans, to Chicago over the Pennsylvania by rail, to Minneapolis and St. Paul by air, and on to the Pacific coast by the Northwestern railroads. It is this threat that is said to have spurred the New York Central into action.

Beyond admitting that its air committee has discussed the subject and that "no definite conclusions have been reached," the New York Central had nothing to add today. It was said, though, that the New York Central is planning to link with the Canadian Pacific, the Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroads, the Boeing Airways corporation and the Mid-plane Transit Co. of Minneapolis.

Three air-routes are to be established, it is reported, as follows:

Between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Winnipeg.

Between Minneapolis, St. Paul and Detroit.

Between Chicago and Duluth.

Another route, it is said, is planned later between Detroit and Duluth, across Lake Michigan.

The Lindbergh Air-Rail Co., the T. A. T., already has adopted a schedule, effective Aug. 15, whereby westbound planes will await the arrival of the Pennsylvania's Manhattan Limited in Chicago at 2:05 p. m., and carry passengers by air to St. Paul and Minneapolis in three and one-half hours. This will enable the passengers to make connections to rthe west and northwest via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific.

in a state carriage at 1:45 o'clock and entered the royal box while a band played the Dutch national anthem and the crowd cheered.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the athletes began streaming through the marathon gate, headed by the Greeks. They wore dress sports uniforms and the head of each team carried the flag of his country.

Greece was given the place of honor at the head of the line because the Olympic games originated in that country. The other nations followed in alphabetical order except the Hollanders, who were last in the parade.

The athletes marched round the track. As they passed the honor tribune they were at "eyes right" and each gave his national salute. Then they lined up in the field facing the tribune, the standard bearers standing a little apart and in front of the ranks.

The United States athletes were sixth from the last of the line, Dr. Clarence L. Houser of the Los Angeles, Calif., Athletic club, and Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois Athletic club, carrying the standards.

The Germans had an imposing delegation. They were dressed entirely in white and dark blue.

The Dutch delegation was the biggest, with the American second and the German third.

GOVERNOR RULES IN FAVOR OF MRS. YALE

Michigan Executive Refuses To Order Extradition of Former Marion Woman

every year thereafter until the child reached the age of 16.

Written Into Record

A copy of the agreement was written into the records of the hearing before Attorney General Brucker.

In the affidavit filed against Mrs. Yale by Hoch, charging her with child stealing, it was charged that she came to the Hoch home here on Sunday, July 7, and obtained permission to take the lad, Donald Jack Hoch for an automobile ride. Instead of returning him it was charged that she returned to Detroit. In her testimony at the hearing Mrs. Yale said that the child's grandmother, Paul Hoch's mother, voluntarily gave her custody of the lad.

She immediately returned to Detroit and the following day received a letter signed "Paul," in which the writer asked if it was her intention to keep the boy until Sept. 1. The letter was also written into the records of the hearing.

Brucker's Opinion

In his opinion, Attorney General Brucker held as follows: "It would appear from the foregoing that Paul L. Hoch, who signed and swore to the complaints charging the respondents (Mr. and Mrs. Yale) with child stealing, knew at the time the complaint was signed that the respondent Helen Yale was entitled to the custody of the child at the time, and that she would continue to be entitled to such custody until Sept. 1."

U. S. PLANS OTHER CHINESE TREATIES

Secretary Kellogg Hopes for Abolition of Extra-Territoriality

was laid in the agreement reached by MacMurray with Hwang Fu last March in settlement of the so-called Nanking incident.

Officials Undismayed

Secretary Kellogg's willingness to give up the extraterritorial rights enjoyed by the United States, was expressed in his enunciation of policy a year ago last January and was contingent on China's ability adequately to protect American lives and property.

State department officials appear to be undismayed by the recent incident at Chefoo and the fact that Manchuria is not under control of the Nationalists, nor does the reported threatening attitude of Japan toward that province seem to cause any apprehension. Secretary Kellogg on at least four occasions has declared that Manchuria is an integral part of China, and must be so considered. There is no evidence that he had receded from that position.

It is accepted here that Japan would not attempt to set up a separate government there which it would control, or if it attempted to do so, the United States and the other powers would not permit it.

Further, diplomats here believe that with the United States taking the initiative in fulfilling the aims of the nine power treaties made in connection with the arms conference in 1921, other powers will have no other alternative but to follow suit.

SMITH WILL TAKE STUMP IN CAMPAIGN

Democratic Nominee Abandons Original Plan To Limit Speeches

say that he was convinced that Maryland was wet, he is reported to have agreed with Smith that it would be good political strategy to stress the subject in a majority of the campaign speeches.

While Ritchie feels Smith will carry Maryland he is said to have frankly told the New York governor that in order to accomplish this result it will mean that a real fight will have to be waged.

Prior to the conference, Governor Ritchie predicted that Maryland would give Smith a plurality of from 20,000 to 25,000.

Indians for Smith

Indians of Wisconsin and Montana will vote for Governor Smith this fall according to word brought to Democratic national headquarters today by Mrs. O. J. Kellogg of Seymour, Wis., a full-blooded Indian woman.

"There are 35,000 Indians in Wisconsin who ordinarily are Republicans and have been followers of Senator La-Follette but this year they will be for Governor Smith," Mrs. Kellogg said. "The Indians realize that Governor Smith has a sense of justice and the basis of their support is the feeling that he would give a hearing to any oppressed people. We are not so much concerned with policies as with the man."

Mrs. Kellogg said she had come in contact with the leaders of the 30,000 Indians in Montana and that they, too, favored Governor Smith.

comes, laws, especially those relative to prohibition, will be more strictly adhered to."

Once a Candidate

Dr. Landrith prides himself as being not merely a prohibitionist but a constitutionalist. In one of the recent presidential campaigns, however, the southerner was named for vice president on the prohibition ticket.

The former college head is also an advocate of splitting the 'Solid South' in politics.

"The South should break its solidness so that the states will rank as 'uncertain'," Dr. Landrith maintains.

That different results will likely be noted in the count of votes of the southern states this year, owing to Hoover's work in relieving the sufferers in the recent Mississippi flood, is the belief of the lecturer.

"The mere fact that these states have been solid politically is the reason a southern candidate is not nominated for the presidency," Dr. Landrith says. "The Democrats are sure of their votes and the Republicans believe it useless to try a break in the political leanings of the southern voters by picking a candidate there."

Finds Ohio Law-Abiding

Dr. Landrith believes that Ohio is one of the most law-abiding states in the union in regard to enforcement of the Volstead law.

"Since I have been touring Ohio, I have not seen a man in an intoxicated condition. In the northwestern states it is a common sight to run across intoxicated men in every town and city.

Dr. Landrith lectured to the chautauqua audience last night on the subject, "Talking With the World Down."

2 MEN JAILED IN THEFT OF CIGARETS

Fines and Imprisonment Ordered Following Negroes' Pleas of Guilty

A fine of $100 and costs on a charge of selling cigarets without a license and a sentence of 30 days in the county jail and $25 fine on a charge of receiving stolen property, was drawn by David West, negro, proprietor of a soft drink parlor on Hocking st., when he pleaded guilty to the charges before acting Municipal Judge J. D. Williamson, this morning.

West was first arrested on the charge of receiving stolen property when it was learned by F. E. Tabler, captain of the Erie police, that a carton of cigarets, stolen by Robert Ballard, negro, from the Erie transfer, had been disposed of to West. Ballard, who was arrested yesterday by Captain Tabler, was also given a sentence of 30 days in jail and $25 fine when he pleaded guilty to stealing the cigarets before acting Judge Williamson this morning.

A charge of selling the cigarets was placed against West by Captain Tabler this morning. Both men were taken to the county jail this afternoon to start serving their sentences.

STREET STOP SIGNS NEAR COMPLETION

Work To Be Finished Early Next Week, Chief of Police Says

Work of painting stop signs at street intersections designated by city council last Monday night, will be resumed Monday morning, Chief of Police Thompson said today. The work which was halted by the rain will probably be completed by Tuesday night, the chief stated.

With the completion of the work, strict enforcement of the stop section of the traffic ordinance will be in effect. An unusual situation as the result of the ordinance passed by city council Monday night, is the establishing of a five-way stop at the intersection of Church st., Mt. Vernon av. and Vine st.

Whereas the previous ordinance provided for three-way stop granting motorists the right-of-way on Church st., the new ordinance provides that all cars must be brought to a stop before crossing the intersection. This will be the rule in spite of Church st. being designated as a through street.

RICKARD PROPOSES MATCH WITH HANSEN

Sharkey May Be Opponent In Another Heavyweight Elimination

New York, July 28—A proposed match between Jack Sharkey and Knute Hansen, the melancholy Dane, who returned last week from a long stay abroad, was discussed today by Tex Rickard and Walter Friedman, who is now handling Hansen's affairs.

Rickard does not know whether Sharkey will consent to meeting so formidable an opponent as the Danish gaint so early in the 1928-29 heavyweight elimination trials but if he can make the match he may stage it at one of the local ball parks early in September or at Madison Square Garden later in that month.

A return match between Sharkey and Johnny Risko has been suggested but Rickard isn't keen for it, remembering the drabness of the alleged fight between these two in the Garden last spring.

WATCHMAN SHOT IN ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP

Two Masked Bandits Escape Without Payroll of Company

Steubenville, July 28—While Andrew Vineburg, 64, watchman for the Liberty Paper Co., was believed recovering today from wounds received in an attempted holdup of the concern here late yesterday, authorities in Canton, East Liverpool and Amsterdam were cooperating with local police in a widespread search for the two masked bandits who escaped, following the shooting, without obtaining any loot.

Vineburg and three other employes were in the company's office yesterday when the two masked men, nervous and apparently amateurs, entered the office with drawn guns. Vineburg was shot in the back without warning and one of the bandits covered R. L. Williams, office worker, and demanded the payroll. Williams ducked and shoved a box containing $6,000 out of the bandits' reach. Disheartened, the two men raced out of the office, clambered into a waiting auto with a third youth at the wheel, and sped north.

ENTER MINE TICKET IN COUNTY POLITICS

Save-the-Union Group Gets into Race After Famous March

St. Clairsville, July 28—The Save-the-Union committee of John Brophy fame, which added color to the mine strike war in Belmont county last spring and which figured in the sensational "march" on the county jail to liberate a number of strike prisoners, had today entered politics.

A complete county ticket has been placed in the field and will be voted on at the general election along with the Republican and Democratic tickets. "Mother" Guinn, alleged leader of the 51-women march last April, and her husband, son and relatives, are named in connection with the new political move. Frank Swinn is running for sheriff on the new independent ticket.

KANSAS CITY PLANS TO BE AIR CENTER

Company Will Manufacture 200 Biplanes and Monoplanes as Initial Work

Kansas City, Mo., July 28—This throbbing midwestern city, which has long been recognized as the country's geographical center, and which during the Republican National Convention in June was the nation's political center, now bids fair to become the air capital of the United States.

The most recent development on Kansas City's booming aircraft market, was the announcement of tentative plans by the Butler Manufacturing Company to manufacture here in its initial undertaking, 200 biplanes and monoplane. It was only shortly before this that the United Aircraft Corporation had announced its intention of locating here.

But it is not on the manufacturing side alone that Kansas City is coming to the front. The nation's central city has already become a very vital part of the gigantic network of commercial aviation which is enmeshing the country. The Transcontinental Air Transport Inc., in which Colonel Lindbergh has an active interest, plans to use the airport here as a point in its air-rail route for trans-continental travel.

Passenger Service

The Scenic Airways, likewise, is to use the airport.

The National Air Transport Inc., already has an organization here for its mail and passenger service.

Air contractors have likewise established a passenger flying service here.

The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce with the same alert mindedness, which enabled it to secure the national convention, was not slow to awake to the city's possibilities as an air center. The city's location, the Chamber of Commerce realized made it inevitable that the aircraft industry would develop rapidly here.

So accurate was the prophetic foresight of the civic organization that the Chamber of Commerce industrial expansion department found it necessary to appoint one of its experts, Hugh L. Thompson, to the field of investigating aircraft developments only.

FIND MONEY

Estate of Murdered Contractor Totals $10,000 in Bank

St. Clairsville, July 28—Money totaling about $10,000 has been located in a Bellaire and Steubenville bank which belongs to G. W. Simmons, supposed wealthy contractor who was found murdered Tuesday near Lake City, Fla., according to announcement by the man's son, Edward Simmons today.

A private detective, in company with the son of the hammer victim, located the money. The victim's granddaughter is being sought by police at the Florida city who accused her husband E. J. Booth, of Mingo, O., of killing the old man to secure his money.

It is belief of Edward Simmons here, son of the slain man, and father of the girl suspect, that the couple has escaped to Cuba. He declared that Booth with a criminal record, would decide on this avenue of escape as the most likely to succeed.

MOTHER DIES AFTER EATING TOADSTOOLS

The toadstools were gathered in the family's backyard. Mrs. Stutler became ill almost immediately after eating the plants and died a short time later in the hospital.

Daily Proverb—"A fool is always meditating how he shall begin his life; a wise man how he shall end it."

Ah, There's Life in It Yet!

It has been oh, so long, since the last meeting of the charter members of the T. R.'s Ananias club—so long that memory of that event fades, and hope, too. But one is refreshed to pick up a copy of his favorite newspaper to find emblazoned there before his eyes that "Smith Roars His Reply to Editor and Clergyman."

Then, on the other hand, one reads into the story and discovers that Bill Allen White, the Emporia editor, "Rolls Up His Sleeves and Prepares to Give Battle." Still farther on it is declared the New York governor "Strode Up and Down, with Anger in Every Movement."

And also it is discovered that "Editor Flays Tammanyized Democracy," while asserting that "Smith Belittles Intelligence of American Electorate."

It may be explained here that a New York evangelist and reformer, and Editor Bill said something about Governor Al being a defender of saloons and such in pre-Volstead days. But who cares how the row started? The fact is there is a sizable row under steam in national politics—so let's go.

When a presidential nominee can get all steamed up over a political assertion thus far in advance of election day it presages a red-hot campaign. Perhaps there will be something worth while in the forthcoming drive for Hoover and Smith—something to drive away the lethargy which besets us along about this time of the summer.

A Crimeless Community.

In a little town called Mound Bayou, in Mississippi, there are 1,000 negroes. It is a negro community. It is officered by negroes. Its business houses are owned and operated by negroes. And it has just abolished its city jail as a needless expense.

In the last six years Mound Bayou has not had more than one arrest a year, and it has been a score of years since a capital crime has been committed there. With such a record it is easily understood why the community's jail is a needless expense.

There is no other community in the country, one feels safe in saying, which can boast of the record of Mound Bayou, in the matter of law observance.

There are negroes, of course, just as there are whites, who are law-breakers. The few heap ignominy on the many. What one law-breaker does reacts with disfavor on every member of that law-breaker's race—particularly if the law-breaker is a negro. But Mound Bayou's thousand residents have reason to hold up their heads and look the world squarely in the eye.

Hoover in the Mid-West.

It is coming—the winning of the grain belt ballots by Mr. Hoover.

During his passage through the grain states the Republican nominee had opportunity to confer with many leaders. He has discussed with them the farm problem, and he has been received with enthusiasm.

Senator McNary has turned in for Hoover, and is represented as entirely satisfied with the nominee's attitude toward the agrarian and his problems. Governor McMullen, of Nebraska, still is to be heard from, but there are indications that even he is more than half-way on the bandwagon.

Mr. Hoover has an appeal that is difficult to withstand. Take Governor Hammill, of Iowa, for instance, a sturdy opponent of the convention's choice. But after a conference with the nominee, announces himself delighted, recognizes in Hoover a real friend of the farmer with ideas of great value and committed to practical legislation.

The grain states are lining up. Kansas already is in line, with Charley Curtis and Henry Allen and Arthur Capper and the others in the Hoover camp. Nebraska will swing into the parade of states, too, when McMullen has time to overcome his prejudices. The Dakotas have approved the nominee. Iowa is sitting pretty. And the chances are Oklahoma will be strongly Republican this year.

As the solver of industrial problems, Hoover is without a peer.

Mr. Work's Successor.

There is general approval of Mr. Coolidge's appointment of Roy O. West to succeed Hubert Work as secretary of the interior, a portfolio which Dr. Work relinquished to become chairman of the National Republican committee and manager of Herbert Hoover's campaign.

A native of the central-west, a graduate of DePauw university, Indiana, Mr. West has been a successful attorney for many years. He has long been one of the wheel horses of the National Republican committee. He exercises a large and vigorous interest in educational problems. By temperament, experience, and interest, he is admirably qualified for the post to which he has just been appointed.

Romance on the Ohio River.

Shades of Mark Twain and the swash-buckling days of Ohio and Mississippi river steamboating! The rivalry which existed half a century ago and more, between the masters and pilots of side-wheelers and stern-wheelers that plied the waters of those great streams in bygone days, has been revived. The sport which was in the heyday of its popularity when most of us were still wearing rompers, is once again acclaimed.

The Betsy Ann, old-fashioned and wooden, carrying aboard the gold-leafed elk horns which she won in racing competitions on the broad breast of the Mississippi, and the Chris Greene, bright, new and steel, the challenger, churned the turgid waters of the Ohio, belching great clouds of steamer-coal smoke and screaming defiance with throaty blasts from their whistles—and the Chris Greene won the twenty-mile race by five short lengths.

The gold-leafed elk horns are now the property of the modern packet and its crew, but the glory which the Betsy Ann achieved in its early career survives because of her game fight to the finish. It was a race that thrilled hundreds lining the banks from Cincinnati to New Richmond.

In this day of zooming airplanes and trans-oceanic non-stop tours and two-miles-a-minute in motor cars and speed boats which make seventy miles an hour, and Atlantic liners that do more knots per hour than the Ohio river packets can do in half a day, it is of more than passing interest to see steamboat racing revived.

Nothing is more exciting than the sight of two stern-wheelers like the Betsy Ann and the Christ Greene, in a race, thick clouds of smoke rolling from their stacks, the boiler doors open and hot flames darting out apparently in search of more fuel to burn, flags and bunting flying fore and aft—and always the seamen at the rail nearest their competitor, hurling defies.

There is in this race a reminder of the historic classic between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez, from New Orleans to St. Louis, in 1870, the greatest ever run on inland waters.

The Natchez was built at Cincinnati, and great was the disappointment up and down the Ohio river when word was received that the Robert E. Lee had steamed triumphantly into its berth at St. Louis some six hours ahead of its competitor.

The Robert E. Lee and Natchez race stirred the entire country. There was as much excitement about it then as in a Dempsey-Tunney prize fight today. The real point of controversy between supporters of one or the other of the boats arose when the Robert E. Lee met the Paragoud in mid-stream, lashed itself to the Paragoud and while both vessels were in motion took on from the latter more than a hundred cords of wood, to replenish a rapidly dwindling fuel supply. The Natchez was compelled to stop at various points and pick up scows, from which it received its fuel.

The action of the skipper of the Robert E. Lee in lashing his packet to the Paragoud started an argument about the ethics of the race, and this argument, begun fifty-eight years ago, still is unsettled.

King George had less than this when he was Duke of Cornwall, but in those days the Prince of Wales was granted an annuity of $100,000—with an additional yearly grant of $50,000 for the Princess of Wales—from the nation. The present Prince of Wales has no such annuity. Out of the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall he has to keep up Marlborough House, pay all his own expenses and bear the additional expense of a country seat which he recently acquired. For his long tours about the world special grants have been made by parliament.

Dyspepsia Requires Attention

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When your digestion begins to "go back" on you and your food feels like a stone in your stomach you should find out what is wrong. It is likely the cause is trifling and can be removed without difficulty. But if you neglect the condition you may wake up some day to find out you are in serious trouble.

To be hungry is natural and desirable. But after eating heartily, to have gnawing or aching pains in the stomach within an hour or two, or to have such pains an hour or two before meal-time, is a bad sign.

Nausea in the morning, after eating, or, for that matter, at any time of day, is a symptom which should not be disregarded. Belching of gas, gulping up of food, and vomiting, give evidence of a disability worthy your attention.

Indigestion and all the symptoms I have suggested are grouped under the common title—"dyspepsia." This is a term which means little more now than to indicate a lot of symptoms relating to the stomach. It was formerly used as the name of a disease. Today, doctors recognize that these common symptoms may be sifted and with the aid of the X-ray and various laboratory tests, the exact disturbance may be located and defined.

Ulcer of the stomach causes pain, nausea, vomiting and the familiar chain of dyspepsia symptoms. Disease of the kidneys may have these symptoms. Cancer of the stomach is another of the serious diseases which may upset digestion and produce pronounced symptoms of dyspepsia.

These three conditions—ulcer, Bright's disease and cancer—are capable of discovery by the careful tests I have suggested. It is early recognition and early treatment that will make it possible to apply satisfactory methods of treatment.

There is another form of dyspepsia, which is due to anemia, overwork, habitual loss of sleep, or nervous exhaustion. This type is usually called "nervous dyspepsia," because it seems to be the effect of a failure of function in the nerve supply of the stomach, its muscular walls and lining membrane.

It is useless to attempt a cure of nervous dyspepsia by taking soda tablets or other drugs intended to neutralize the excessive acidity of the stomach contents. Such treatment will give temporary relief but, of course, the underlying trouble can not be removed until the ultimate causes have been reached.

Before going to your doctor to worry him with your troubles give yourself and your habits a careful survey. Everybody should know enough about foods, beverages and the simple rules of personal hygiene to discover where the fault is in the manner of living. Put your life on a higher physical plane and see if the dyspepsia does not disappear.

Editorial Opinion.

A TIMELY WARNING.

Addressing the national convention of Exchange clubs in session in Toledo, United States Senator Fess warned that the nation must not permit its defense force to be reduced below the present standing army of only 137,000 men.

Ten years ago the United States had 1,000,000 men overseas in war service and Secretary of War Baker was planning to increase his fighting forces to 5,000,000 men. Allied victories made such action unnecessary.

A political leader of that time had predicted that a million men would spring to arms over night. There was no such response to the call for volunteers. A very large proportion of the million men had to be conscripted and drilled and equipped with arms and ammunition. It was not accomplished over night. It took time and involved the expenditure of billions of dollars.

Now, notwithstanding the agreement of the world powers in renunciation of war as a policy of aggression, the United States and every other nation must maintain at least a skeleton army, virtually nothing more than a national police department and a nucleus around which a larger fighting force may be built in time of emergency.

It will be seen, therefore, that the position Senator Fess takes is not at all inconsistent with the Kellogg peace plan. A defenseless rich nation would be an invitation and a temptation to aggression. The senator therefore is quite right about this and also in his contention that the country must never surrender its inherent right to limit and restrict immigration.

Senator Fess is a profound student of national and international problems. Fortunately he has no opposition for Republican renomination for the long term to succeed himself. This assures him a place on the general election ballot in November.

Regardless of what may happen to any other candidate or any other issue, this scholarly, earnest, industrious senator from Ohio should be reelected.—Toledo Blade.

Petrarch and Laura.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

One of the greatest love stories that has come down through the ages is that of Petrarch for Laura. True, there are those who dispute the fact of the actual existence of Laura, but we have absolutely nothing on which to base the truth or falsehood of this statement. We have, however, the sonnets and songs of Petrarch, each of which breathes in every line his love and longing for her.

Petrarch, whose right name was Francesco Petrarca, was one of the greatest of Italian poets. The story goes that Petrarch saw the lovely Laura, who so inspired him, in the church of St. Clara at Avignon, but there is nothing which positively identifies the lady. Evidently, she was married and, like Dante, Petrarch never experienced the ecstacies and joys of a love fulfilled. He worshipped from a distance, placed Laura on a pedestal and immortalized her in his sonnets.

We have little of which to make a real love story in the lives of these two, excepting the glorious love which Petrarch breathes in his poems. There is much likeness between his story and Dante's, for both of them created their masterpieces through the inspiration of a woman; both of their loved ones died of the plague; both were married women and in neither case is there any record of the tender meetings and loving interchange of the familiar nothings so peculiar to lovers.

But in the beauty and sublimity of Petrarch's love for Laura, in his hopeless longing for his loved one, there is such pathos and such beauty that it is no wonder it will live as long as people are able to read of the wonder of this love.

All the honors which came to Petrarch in his later life were empty things to him, for Laura was not there to enjoy his triumphs. She had died in her fortieth year of the plague and his grief was overwhelming. He sung her praises and his love for her incessantly.

Many of his finest works are forgotten, yet never as long as the world lasts will his love for Laura be forgotten, and their names will ever be linked as an inspiration for all lovers.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Saturn's Rings and Comets' Tails.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Has it ever been suggested that the rings around Saturn may have been the tail of a comet?—John Bell, New York."

Yes, and it has also been suggested that the circular "craters" on the moon may have been coral-rings built up around mountain tips in ancient lunar seas, long since drawn away into the dry void of space. Such things are flights of the unbitted imagination, like Keats's.

"—magic casements opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn."

They are produced by too ready yielding to impressions made by accidental resemblance. The lunar crater rings have a certain superficial likeness to the forms of the coral islands of the Pacific ocean. This resemblance suggests immediately the fascinating speculation that once on a time the moon was covered with seas, where broad plains now form the dark areas so plain to the naked eye, and that these lunar seas were dotted with coral islets and archipelagoes as enchanting as the island paradises that captivated the first circumnavigators of our own favored planet. But there is no real evidence to support such a conclusion. The coral islands of the moon are as purely imaginary as the human faces that fancy is able to picture in the clouds.

So, too, the idea that a comet may once have wrapped its blowing tail around the planet Saturn and then, tearing itself away, have left the severed tail as a souvenir ring to recall its visit, is based upon a quick fancy and a complete lack of information about the make-up of comets' tails as well as about the nature of Saturn's rings.

Yet this idea has seized upon the popular imagination to such a degree that it is often mentioned in conversation. To dissipate it one need go no further than to recall the fact that comets' tails are demonstrably less dense and tangible than the lightest wisp of cloud that faintly blurs the blue summer sky. The earth has plunged through the tail of a great comet more than once within scientific history, and the effect was too slight to be surely detected by the most careful observations. This happened with Halley's comet, which many readers will remember as having made a spectacular visit, after seventy-six years absence, in 1910.

On the other hand, the rings of Saturn, though they are in some ways mysterious, are certainly composed of solid matter, which, however, is evidently broken up into immense swarms of particles, which individually can be of no great size and the greater part of which may be hardly larger than specks of dust or grains of sand. The rings are enormous in expanse—168,000 miles across exteriorly—but relatively very thin; yet their aggregate mass must be millions of times greater than that of the largest comet ever seen.

The form and structure of these rings and the manner in which they revolve around the planet are entirely inconsistent with any hypothesis ascribing their origin to any source outside the system of Saturn itself. Saturn no doubt begot them in the early stages of its planetary evolution, and an interesting question now is, as I have before pointed out, whether Saturn will eventually "devour" them, the the Saturn of Greek mythology devoured his children.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Jerome Hostetter, local patrolman, created much excitement and not a little bit of amusement when he dashed down the street attired in his night clothing in pursuit of a supposed thief. The fugitive had attempted to sell what was thought to be stolen goods at the Hostetter home. The man escaped in the Hocking Valley yards.

A Glimpse of Paris Night Life.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

At least one night of a tourist's stay in Paris is devoted to the night life of the gay French capital. It is called a "Tour de Nuit." Usually it begins with dinner in a Montmartre restaurant, one of the hundreds scattered over the hillside where Paris night life centers. Visits are then paid to various amusement places, shows and so on, such as "L'Enfer," where a flaming sign announces its name to the passerby. Here one may see beautiful girls cast into artificial tongues of flame. Next door is "Le Ceil," where one may learn the Frenchman's conception of the ethereal region. Coming back to "Earth," stops are made at the "Cabaret of Ghosts," where, seated on coffins in a eerie atmosphere, refreshments are taken.

At mignight the real night life is in full swing. Jazz bands blare from concert halls along the Boulevard Clichy and taxicabs roll through the Place Blanche to discharge their cargoes of bejeweled women and their escorts.

Then the descent of the hill of Montmartre begins. Every block holds cabarets fitting each hour, until the foot of the hill is reached, when one hails a cab and drives across Paris to, Les Halles, the markets. For blocks one walks through great buildings resembling aviation hangars, where the produce of Paris is on sale. Rugged, red-faced French women stand behind pyramids of fresh fruit and vegetables, while in adjoining halls, fish of every kind is sold. — Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 28—Along Broadway they are known as "take joints." They are fly-by-night cafes whose prosperity depends entirely upon the sap. They take him as Grant took Richmond, and if he squawks out he skids on his ear.

The especially-desired location is a place from which some reputable cafe or night club has moved. The gyp parlor entrepreneur keeps its exterior the same and sometimes will, save for the change of a single letter, have the same name.

Many, whose proprietors have gone out of business or moved, now flourish. The enterprise is not built on the idea of return patronage. A customer rarely goes back unless he is a glutton for punishment. They are the sort inspiring Bugs Baer's crack: "Waiter, bring my check and a fright wig."

Some lodge next door to first-class haunts and so simulate their neighbor's outside decorations that many enter unsuspectingly and are not conscious of their mistake until the garcon hands them the awful news. Aside from overcharge, the addition is done with a split leadpencil.

In most of them are a brace of beetle-browed bullies who act as bouncers and intimidate those who meekly inquire about the accuracy of a two-dollar charge for a razor-thin sandwich. As a general thing people submit to the robbery rather than face a row.

Such frenetic joints, too, are the rendezvous for hardboiled ladies of the night who carry suspicious vials in handbags and have convenient apartments in the neighborhood. Nor is the ancient badger game an entirely lost gesture in the Tenderloin "take joints."

It has been estimated there are more than 200 sucker saloons of this sort between the Circle and Herald square. They are hep to New York's responsive appeal to a "front," and their carriage starters and outside trappings are as elegant as the town affords.

The largest living-room in America is in the de luxe apartment-house on the site of the old Clark mansion on upper Fifth avenue. It is big enough to house an ordinary suburban dwelling. The romance of New York's real estate is one of the thrilling aspects of a city constantly tearing down and building up. The immigrants who have become multi-millionaires in real estate manipulations during the past few years number more than a dozen. The most successful was a newsboy who now owns almost the entire block upon which he once sold papers.

On the Times building is a tablet testifying to the vision of a well known New Yorker. It bears the name of Charles Thorley, the late Fifth avenue florist. Mr. Thorley saw the possibility of the triangular square upon which the Times building now stands. It was then occupied by a beer shack. Mr. Thorley sought the owner and asked his price. The owner being rich decided to demand a price that would frighten him off. He asked $8,000 a year. Mr. Thorley promptly leased it for 105 years. And as a result, his estate now receives a yearly profit of $19,500.

It is annoying to hear people sniff, "He is just a real estate man." It is real estate men who have done much to make this city the towering affair it is. And whether you care for it or not, you must admit it is quite a village.

Dean Gray, of the College of Education, Chicago university, remarks that "the most voracious readers are to be found among the young adults, between the ages of seventeen and thirty years. Books have taken a back seat in matters of popular reading material in America. Newspapers come first in interest, magazines hold second place and books third."

If that is true it ought to give newspaper owners something to think about. If young people are going to take their impressions from today's newspapers it behooves the makers of those newspapers to give them some reading matter that is worth their time and attention. There are, fortunately, a number of newspapers in this country that are doing this very thing. The ones which are not doing it will not indefinitely continue in popularity and prestige.

In a recent commercial convention, salesmanship was defined as not merely the job of inducing people to buy a certain article, but rather as an orderly effort to spread health and comfort and knowledge. The salesman who does not take a long look at his job, who does not see his work as an opportunity for achieving something worth while, who does not think of himself as a man playing a part in the making of a better world, is not a true salesman and will not make an enduring success.

The delay and the difficulty of growing up furnish one of the most interesting sidelights on man. Some time ago, in a student war participated in by members of the engineering and law departments of the University of Michigan, more than 4,000 eggs of varying degrees of freshness were thrown. All the way up through life the desire to throw eggs prevails and persists. A supposedly intelligent man once said that the thing he would like most to do would be to throw an egg into an electric fan. Another man said he craved the pleasure of jumping off a woodshed roof into a bathtub full of ice-cream. There is no such thing as completely growing up. Perhaps it is just as well. A world full of actual adults would be a dreary place.

Labor and Industry.

The Order of Railway Expressmen now claims to have practically 100 per cent. control of such workers in New Jersey, New York and New England.

The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks considers the prospects bright for the enactment of a law at the present session of congress increasing their pensions from $998.88 to $1,200 a year.

The celebrated Leipzig trade fair has tripled in size and attendance since the war. Recently a hall twice the size of Madison Square garden in New York City has been added to the collection of exhibition buildings.

The invention of non-inflammable gasoline is claimed again, this time by a French chemist. Obviously there can be no question as to the great utility of fireproof gasoline, but unless the French inventor has achieved something normally considered impossible by leading petroleum chemists, the public must be prepared for defects in such a fuel.

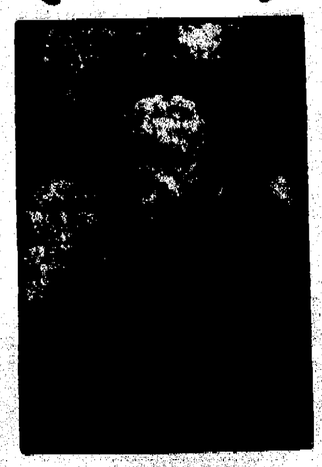
Qualified by Past Service



B. J. SHELTON

Experience is regarded as an important qualification for positions of responsibility in private life and should be fully as essential in public work.

B. J. Shelton, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, bases his campaign largely upon his record in that office and the fact that his experience places him in position to give the public thoroughly efficient and economical service.

Investigation will show that during his time as treasurer, new methods of tax collection and other details of office management have been introduced, resulting in improved service at minimum cost.

He invites inquiry into his record and solicits support of all Republican voters of the county in the August primary.

CORN ON THE COB

It's now open season for corn on the cob as well as political candidates. It seems to me that eating corn on the cob is different from eating any other vegetable or fruit in season. Not that you can't remember from season to season the correct posture of the little finger when grasping the cob or whether to eat forward or backward, but don't you feel just a little bit self conscious and timid about attacking the first half dozen ears? Maybe in the haven of one's own domicile the exercise doesn't seem such an ordeal but out in the wide open spaces of the restaurant where each chair is a temporary mutual observation platform, it takes courage to order "corn on the cob and an extra of butter."

STRAY KITTENS

A cat is a cat in any one of it's nine lives and by the time it has reached its fifth or sixth life it is pretty able to take care of itself and can judge just who is and who isn't friendly to its tribe. But whether you like cats or not you'll have to admit that there's something about a kitten that makes you want to treat it with dignified kindness even if you don't follow your first impulse and pick it up and cuddle it. As far as I'm concerned I'll never leave a wandering juvenile feline to the perils of a cruel motorized world again if I have to toss it to the office of the humane officer. It's a purely selfish motive that prompts this resolution for not in months have I spent such an uncomfortable and conscience-ful morning as I did this week. And all because of the cutest little black kitten you ever saw. It was the most frolicsome kitten and apparently couldn't understand why everyone else around wasn't in the same mood. I first spied it trotting along behind a business man, who, if he didn't relish the idea of having a kitten kat choose him for a partner on a morning walk, at least was making the best of it by ignoring it.

How he got away from it I don't know for I met it in the same block, and in the same hilarious spirits it insisted on accompanying me. I argued with it, pointing out that unfriendly dogs lurked on the highways and byways, but to no avail, it insisted on going with folks and seeing places. Here's what I feel so guilty about. In spite of the extreme heat I broke out into a lope and after running about a block succeeded in outdistancing the kitten. Instead of feeling crushed at my unfriendly gesture little kitten kat turned tail and joined steps with a man who was crossing the street and the last I saw of it, it was jogging merrily along with him. I knew full well it couldn't keep up with him and throughout the whole morning all I could see was its crushed and mangled form beneath the wheels of some high powered motor. Maybe you think it wasn't a relief when the city hall reporter, in answer to my rather hopeless question of whether he had seen anything of the little black kitten said, "yes, the girls in the office of the municipal court have adopted it, and after a breakfast of good rich milk it seems perfectly at home."

A YARN

I heard this one recently: A Frenchman was waiting at a railway station in Ireland when a couple of natives sat down beside him. Said one, "Sure, Pat, it's down to Kilmary I've been, and I'm on my way to Kilpatrick." "Ye don't say so," was the response. "It's meself that's just been after coming down to Kilkenny, and I stop here a bit before I go to Kilmore." "What assassins," exclaimed the Frenchman, "I wish I were safely back in France."

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

MAN, THE INSCRUTABLE

EVERY man likes to think of himself as a deep, dark, unfathomable mystery. Every man likes to feel that there is a hidden side to his nature—that there are dark corners in his soul and his life which have never been exposed or explored.

Why can a woman never let a man go right in feeling "inscrutable" after marriage? Why must she be constantly prying into his thoughts, asking him what he's doing and telling him that she sees through him?

It doesn't make him happy. It only makes him resentful. It doesn't make him more frank with her—it only makes him more cautious.

"I can't make you out." "I can't fathom you." "There is something back of your eyes that fascinates me—but I don't understand it!"

Any girl knows that these are the most effective and thrilling lines with which to flatter any man and to start him thinking about her. They make him feel so impressive!

Once he discovers that she understands him or is "on to him," it's as though the game of "I spy" were all over and the school bell had rung for the end of recess.

No man is so accursed and so miserable as the one who is married to a curious woman, who is forever digging up his private thoughts and unearthing his secret emotions. The average man's mind is as full of "reservations" as a World Court Treaty, and most of them are as personal and sacred to him as his toothbrush and his razor.

He loves his secret societies because they give him something to be mysterious and secretive about; something to look and act inscrutable about. Something to KEEP TO HIMSELF!

When he is a little boy, he loves to go about disguised as an Indian or a bogey man or a pirate, and to hint darkly of secret treasure and secret codes of which he alone knows.

And when he is a big man, he loves to play Sir Oracle and look wise and talk in cryptic monosyllables. Or to play Santa Claus and spring surprises on everybody. Or to play Grand Pooh Bah, and have everybody walking around on egg-shells and wondering what he will do next.

The woman who can open her baby eyes wide and look at him with admiring awe and astonishment has won a whole lap in the race for his affections. But the woman with brains has a big handicap to overcome. Her glance of perfect comprehension, like a keen surgical knife, cuts clear through to his vanity.

The woman who is continually saying, "I see through you!" is bluffing. The woman who really UNDERSTANDS a man is the one who never lets him KNOW it! The one who lets him go right on being "inscrutable."

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

...TTEN came in late that evening. ...9 o'clock—too late for her ... as usually she did, that ... down the street."

... Emily had gone out to ... anxiously up and ... she glanced at the ... she picked up the re... it back.

... Emily asked herself, would ... when she was Kitten's ... working then, but that ... difference—if she had gone ... pleased and come in any ... with no explanation?

... wasn't only Muz who had ... Lyall was different. One ... kids like Kitten and Dottie ... the street at night, say... reckless things to the boys ... them from the corners.

... had been well reared; she ... difference between right and ... she always was a-tingle ... What had amused ... the gorgeous game of "Just ... bored her; she was practical ... profit.

... Emily worried continually about ... She didn't know. But some ... strange uneasiness charged ... her when she saw Kitten ... away down the street, bright ... nothing, green dress—it always ... swirling about the little figure.

Almost a sense of hovering destiny it was, like that which had crept upon her when she learned both Kent and Marty, each touching upon her life as lines in a triangle, would be brought together in a common profession.

She tried to fight it off but the feeling kept coming back; a sort of vague premonition that Kitten was headed for tragedy.

Now when the clock struck 9 and Emily felt she must say something to Agnes, she heard a cautious step on the porch. Kitten slid through the door and started up the stairs, making almost no sound at all.

But when Emily called her from the living room she came in quickly enough, flashed a glance about and slumped in a chair.

"I've been terribly worried, dear. Where were you?"

The yellow eyes narrowed, gleamed under the long lashes. "Who wants to know, Snoopy? Well, I was out with Dottie."

"But I saw Dottie come home an hour ago. Kitten—"

"Oh, all right! I was with Flossie Gaines then."

"I've asked you not to go with Flossie Gaines. And you promised."

Kitten turned to Agnes with the air of a beaten child. "Make her stop, Muz. What's she always got to run on me for, anyway? Make her stop, can't you?"

"Poor baby! Where's the harm, Emmy?"

Kitten shot an elfin smile at her sister and said hastily, "I want a new dress, Muz. Not a cheap one like I always have, but something nice like Em's. All the girls have them. Can I, Muz? Nice like Em's blue one, only green. Can I?"

Emily's frocks were beautiful. But that was because Mrs. Haiden gave her odds and ends of silks left over in the shop. It took very little material to fit her out, and Emily had learned how to make things for herself.

She gladly would have shared these with Kitten. But Mrs. Haiden designed each one and took such an interest in the making of it that she never felt free to pass it along.

Kitten continually complained about the difference in their wardrobes. And now she was asking her mother to spend money she couldn't afford for one of the elaborate gowns she so admired.

"Can I, Muz? Honestly I never have anything. I'm always humiliated."

"Why, I don't see how we can manage, baby. Unless Emmy—" She looked a question at her elder daughter.

Emily had been saving a little; putting a few dollars into a bank account. This was a fund for the day when she should have her own shop and begin to "be" herself somebody. It meant a tremendous lot to her.

She met her mother's eyes and knew the hurt that would go through them if she refused. She had resolved never to cause that hurt.

"All right," she said. "I'll get it for her." Meekly, trying to feel she was doing right.

She went to the bank the next day and wrote the slip. Her account was small and this took just half of it.

It was on the evening the society column said Kent was expected home for a visit that Marty came to see her.

She was sitting in the porch swing, wondering about Kent. Was he changed much now after these years he had spent away from Lyall? Would he be the same laughing, clear-eyed boy who had dropped funny little notes on her desk at school and called her "kid," waiting for her by the elm tree?

She hadn't changed much, she believed. But would he know her at once?

Would she see him while he was home? Oh—going along the River road, come face to face with him—with Kent . . .

The thought of that set her heart pounding: she had to wait a moment before she could speak to Marty, walking up the steps.

He sat down beside her and lighted a cigarette; that burned out and two others before he spoke.

Then, "Better cut out that crowd down at Great View."

Emily laughed, though there stirred in her something of the old fear and dislike she had felt for him in their school days. He was not openly aggressive as he had been once. But the polish he had been acquiring was thin as yet; she had no wish to scratch through it.

"You sort of like the River road yourself, Marty. I see you with Avis Rossiter now and then."

"That's something else. I don't want you picking up loose ideas."

There was a furious little knock of anger at her throat; almost she could have raised her fist, pressed down hard against the swing, and struck him in the face.

"Maybe you'll tell me," she cried, "what right you have to say such a thing? What right you have to give me orders?"

"Because," h eanswered calmly, "I'm going to marry you some day!"

She jumped up and faced him, everything—even her love for Agnes forgotten. "You! You come here and say this? You dare? Oh, go now! I never want to see you again. You understand? I never want to see you again!"

He got up in a leisurely manner, passed her and looked around with a smile. "Yes, you do, Em. "I'll be back.

"And don't forget what I said. I'm going to marry you some day!"

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

THIS was the last Saturday in July, and there is only a Sunday and a Monday and a Tuesday left. My mother made me let her look at my feet this morning after I had let Jubilee down and had put on my short britches and milked the cows, and she took the rag off my toe and washed it, my toe, and put some red medicine on it, and wrapped it up in cotton and didn't hurt me once, but I was so sure she was going to that I hung onto her, so tight I bet her tongue almost stuck out. And when she got done fixing it she kissed me.

Mothers are funny people. I bet if there wasn't anyone in the world but mothers it would be a fine place. Mine said she is pretty good on cuts and punches but not much good on stone bruises, but she said she had a idea that a stonebruise has to be let alone for a while, and I told her I thought so too. Nobody that has got a stonebruise wants anyone feeling of it or squeezing it. It makes a stonebruise hurt to even look at it hard.

When I got over as far as the vacant lot and tried to play ball I found out that I couldn't run the bases on one heel and the other toe, and Younise said I couldn't walk all the ways to get my cows out and she'd take them to the pasture, so then the bunch said they would take them for me, so me and Younise and Feeble and Maggie, and Hopper went to Younises house and sot on her front steps, which are on the shady side of her house, and there are three auger holes bored in each step, and when I asked her she said the steps are warped dish-shaped so her father bored the holes to let the rain run through, and we all sot down and her mother brang us some hot fried cakes, and the Lost Bag of Tripe was walking around the yard eating his doughnut, and pretty soon Feeble, which, was setting next to me gave a screech and went up in the air, and where she had been setting there was a stream of water shooting up into the air, and it come down in a shower on all of us. The dirty crook had went out in the back and hauled the hose under the house and stuck the nozzle in one of the holes in the step and turned her on. I expect Feeble was about the surprisedest she had ever been in her life, the most surprisedest anyone had ever been. We never did see any more of the Lost Bag of Tripe and Feeble had to put on some of Younises clothes. Younises mother laughed, and Feeble asted her if she didn't have any bowels of compassion and looked crosseyed at her. I was surprised to hear a lady use such language. Hopper is lucky. He is only a crip in one leg, and it don't hurt. A crutch wouldn't help me none.

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Conspires With Dicky To Supply Mary With Funds

IT took me but a few minutes to decide what I must do temporarily with Mary Harrison's sartorial problem. Indeed the decision was but a matter of seconds. The fact of the time I had filched from my breakfast allowance was spent in scoring myself severely that I had not realized the scanty dress equipment possessed by my husband's lovely young niece. Now that Marion's impetuous generosity had opened my eyes, I looked back over the Spring and Summer, and saw that though Mary had managed her clothing so well that she always was attractive—even chic—yet she has had a scanty outfit, indeed, with which to work.

One facet of the problem troubled me sorely, but I knew that I must put it aside for mulling over when I should have returned from Marion's shopping trip. That was the reason for Mary's meager wardrobe and her comment to Marion that she was not going to buy "even a handkerchief" upon the shopping trip I knew that her aunt Harriet Braithwaite supplied her with a liberal allowance. What was the child doing with it?

That question must wait, however. With something more urgent upon me, I put on my hat, and taking up my purse, gloves and coat, I hurried down the hall to Dicky's room, knowing from experience that he would not yet have gone down to breakfast—when he is making a train he always cuts the time to the closest possible limit.

He was coming out of his door as I reach it, and his face clouded with impatience.

"Yes, I know what time it is," he said tartly. "Yes, I'm going to have plenty of time for breakfast. Yes, I'm going to make that train if you don't hinder me."

It was not a propitious moment to put the request I had framed, but I had no alternative.

"You're wrong this time," I said sagely trying and hurrying with him toward the stairs. "I wasn't going to say one of those things. But I must delay you a few second to tell you something important."

He scowled as he stopped.

"It must be important to risk missing the train."

"It is," I retorted, lowering my voice almost to a whisper. "Dicky, I've found out that Mary hasn't bought herself any clothes for months. She's positively shabby, and she told Marion just now she couldn't get herself even a handkerchief."

"What the devil!" Dicky exploded. "Why Harriett and Edwin—"

"Yes, I know," I interposed, "but we can't go into that right now. The child must have some frocks and things right away. I haven't any money that I can get at today—"

"I wouldn't stand for your spending it on Mary if you did have," Dicky retorted. "She happens to be my niece, you know. How much do you think she ought to have a hundred?"

"Mary will do wonders with that, she's a good shopper," I answered. "But, Dicky, I want you to give it to her. Just say that you understand Marion is going shopping for school, and you want her to get herself some things, too. You're always so generous to her—and all of us—that she won't suspect I've noticed she wasn't buying anything."

"Thanks for the best greens," Dicky answered, "and come down to breakfast. I'll have to cash a check when we get into the city. Then I'll slip her the bills when I can get her by herself."

"I'll see that the shopping expedition doesn't start until you've had the chance to see her," I promised, and then we went on down to the dining room to find Lillian, Harry and Marion there, but no sign of Mary.

Dicky looked at his watch.

"Nine minutes until we have to start," he said impatiently.

"I can eat my breakfast in three if necessary," I told him truthfully. "Go on with yours. I'll see what is delaying Mary."

But Dicky's niece dashed into the room before I had reached the door, her hat over one ear, her large purse swinging open with its contents perilously near a tumble. I closed it for her, and smiled lovingly at the voluble excuses she gave for being late. It was when I was following the rest through the semi-darkened hall to the car that my foot struck against something soft. Picking it up I saw that it was Mary's handbook and folding check-book, patently fallen from her purse in her mad rush for the dining-room.
